Thread: Network Bandwidth monitor - VB.Net

maruata - March 30, 2012, 7:13 am

I actually need a help! I have proposed the application. I designed the layout and some function to fetch all the available network adapter.

I want to display the network traffic in-out/download-upload in a graph (Line Graph, Bar Chard, etc)

[img]http://img840.imageshack.us/img840/4254/networkbandwidth.png[/img]

You can download the source which I programmed (only yet 10%) and can have a look, if it is interesting, please help me.

Download the Source

For the password, please post on the thread first. I will PM you.

Here is the proof that this is not a virus!

Code

So this doesn't actually do anything yet .. why did you post this?

ubbelol - March 31, 2012, 8:26 am
Don't put everything inside try..catch statements. -.- MessageBox.Show is not going to throw an exception, no need to create a handler for it along with a lot of other stuff. Only use it where you predict there might be an error.

Toroth - March 31, 2012, 8:41 am

So, you need help completing this, but you are giving away the source to something that does not work yet, but to get it, they have to post to get the password? Am I missing something, or does that sound fucked up?...

Edit: Just saw that you posted the password. Sorry.

Stop putting Try-Catch statements everywhere in your damn program.
 Code Private Sub AboutToolStripMenuItem_Click(sender As System.Object, e As System.EventArgs) Handles AboutToolStripMenuItem.Click
   Try
     MsgBox(String.Format("Programmed and Designed by :{0}{0}Vanlalruata Hnamte{0}admin@zosoftnet.com{0}www.zosoftnet.com", vbCrLf), MsgBoxStyle.Information, "About!")
   Catch ex As Exception
     MsgBox(String.Format("Error Occured while trying to open about-message!{0}{0}{1}", vbCrLf, ex), MsgBoxStyle.Exclamation, "Error - About Load")
   End Try

End Sub
How the fuck is there going to be an error opening a messagebox? And to catch the error, you open ANOTHER messagebox? LOL

String.Format can throw an exception, but won't happen in this case.

The integers drawing the graph is probably the hardest part about the project. I'm sure there are a few different ways you could achieve this.
