Yes there will be perhaps slight downtime when servers are being transferred but the problems will be fixed within a day or two.

There is downtime because of the transfer, everything should return normally within some days.

Expect big changes by VoxaDub, positive ones :)

Actually, if you got banned for a dispute then you did dispute or do something wrong. No mistakes have ever been made. If you want, send proof to vox and he will fix asap.

Also, it does work on windows 8. You just obviously don't know how to work it.

Yes, so I got rid of our previous servers because they were shut and I bought better ones and I've been having issues with the freeradius server (manages VPN accounts) so once I get that fixed we'll be good to go

So just because I don't really feel like giving out my personal information to "fishy people like you" who would give it to the police in a heartbeat if they had to, it means I'm someone who would purchase your service then charge back?

I too have had my lifetime purchase revoked without reason.
Given back, as compensation: a credit of 2.99 which is not even close to my original purchase price of the introductory lifetime package.
I would strongly refrain people from using this VPN as the owner has partaken in unethical business actions, which shows his lacking ability to care for customer satisfaction.

All lifetime accounts were removed when I got a new freeradius server which was not intentional, if Amon would have given me the radius info it wouldnt have been a problem but since that didnt happen lifetime members lost their accounts, I have decided I will allow you to receive a lifetime account in compensation for your problems if you lost a lifetime account please open a ticket stating you did, your account will be checked before crediting it.

I'd I put in the backup it would have replaced all the clients which is why I did not.

I purchased this VPN about 1 month ago. After I had used it for about 3 days it shut off. It would not connect and my whole account was deleted from the site. Tried to send MULTIPLE contact requests and nothing was sent back.

If you are looking for a good VPN I would go somewhere else as you more then likely will end up with the same service that I received.

Please make viable claims, the VPN did not just 'shut off' and if your account was deleted then it was most likely a lifetime account or not idk, but as I've stated a thousand times you need to open a support ticket, flaming on the thread most certainly does not do any good.

Was not flaming. Was just stating a fact from my experience.

No you would actually not since you can add those who have it manually in freeradius which is very easy and they are not more than 15 or something like that.

Just bought it and set it all up

First server connected, but nothing actually worked. No pages would load up.

Second server won't even let me connect to it.

What's going on?

Update:

I'm transferring the website now to my personal dedicated server. Speed will never be an issue with me in charge.

I've already setup the 2 VPN servers with OpenVPN. I will configure the FreeRadius module after I transfer the website.

At the start, I will be providing you two locations:
Dallas, TX with over 50Gbps protection
Netherlands with No Logs

Hopefully we'll be up and running sometime this weekend.

Thanks.

Are we still able to portforward on the new servers?

You should be able to. However I'm not entirely sure if the DDoS Protected location would interfere with you port forwarding as I have strict firewalls set to ensure protection.
