Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Problem with omnicoin

VRUMM - April 5, 2015, 9:19 pm

What I need:
Quick and instant exchange(no register)
Secured web wallet(no download)
Good for lazy people<<<<<<

Atm if I need OMC, I would exchange with a currency exchanger on hf so he does everything for me. I am not selling anything with my hf rn, but I do have partners on here so I frequently deal with omc and the marketplace. It's a pain in the ass to get anywhere.

-Register to bitrexx
-Download Omnicoin wallet
-Deposit Bitcoin(min 30 mins to confirm)
-Buy OMC (another 30 mins)
-Withdraw OMC then send OMC to someone else or Omni.

It's too long and too complicated. You are in a bloody denial if you think the process is easy and fast, so that's why many people are exchanging on HF.
7 hours and one buy order of $2

NiktoKan - April 5, 2015, 9:23 pm

I think Abe is working on instant OMC exchange without registration.

Justin Timberlake - April 5, 2015, 9:33 pm

There are hardly any buy orders on Bittrex and a ton of sell orders, that's just driving the price down. An instant exchange would be wonderful.

Abraham Lincoln - April 5, 2015, 9:37 pm

It's in the works (sort of). I might have something up later this week.

Cameron - April 6, 2015, 12:13 am

I notice this a lot, I'll have people coming to me after OMC paying in BTC. I inform them about Bittrex, yet they'd rather I just did it for them even if it cost them a little extra.

That being said, I personally don't mind waiting a while, I'd rather place a buy order at 990 satoshi and wait a day or so for it to be filled.

Aceman - April 6, 2015, 8:54 am

You can send directly from Bittrex, you don't need to withdraw it directly to your wallet to send OMC to somebody.

As for the buy orders, that's due to the supply and the demand. We have a big buy wall up of about 1 BTC and the people who mine throughout the day are just dumping it on the exchange as opposed to being patient. There's too much OMC out there right now so it's difficult to push the price up further until we have more of a need for the coin.

VRUMM - April 6, 2015, 9:03 am

(Apr 6, 2015 08:54 AM)Aceman Wrote: [CITE] You can send directly from Bittrex, you don't need to withdraw it directly to your wallet to send OMC to somebody.

As for the buy orders, that's due to the supply and the demand. We have a big buy wall up of about 1 BTC and the people who mine throughout the day are just dumping it on the exchange as opposed to being patient. There's too much OMC out there right now so it's difficult to push the price up further until we have more of a need for the coin.

Read what I wrote. One buy order of $2 for the last 7 hours.

severos - April 7, 2015, 11:14 am

An instant exchange service will be cool, I've actually thought of giving it a shot to learn dealing with OMC, but found it's too much work for a poor university student like me QQ