This IS kinda sketch.

Some new users are just eager to help and contribute.
But then there is your post activity. From what your activity says for the 2 months you have spend around Hack Forums, majority of that has been muddling around with IRC Bots. And when this failed you started looking for a "partner". It would also appear as though you are impatient as well.
Spoiler (Click to View)
Whats really fucked up, I cant even call this "Cross posting" its all in the same section, this is just... spamming.

Any user who can compile IRC bots and build a bot network can easily get a cheap shell or IRCd.

What possible motivation is there really for using a random service that is not so openly being hinted at "Hey come run your botnet here"

Theoretical Idea
- I am having a hard time getting a reasonable botnet built up.
- But I am a member of community of people who can build these networks up.
- They dont want to partner up with me.
- If I give people free IRC services, I remain in control of a resource they require.
- Let THEM do the work, and I can take over the networks at a later date, or when enough bots have accumulated.

Again, if I am going to go through the trouble of setting up something like this, does it REALLY take that long to do the wget command to pull down my flavor of an IRCd? ?

You could very well be legit. I could be wrong on this. I have been on other stuff.
But 2 months on the site, nothing but demonstrated issues with this same technology, and suddenly you can just without issue offer people a portion of this resource that you seem to have struggled with since you joined?

What happened?, you wake up one morning and had an epiphany?
Doubt that. ?

i can totally see where you are both coming from but some people may not have the funds to host their own server or have the knowledge and i was knew to all of this sort of stuff many years ago, and i never had the opportunity to get offered a spot on someones server so i had to learn and do it myself so i though i wouldnt mind helping other people out and im not arrogant!, and why wouldnt i want a partner ddosing is boring if your doing it on your own so why would i not want to have a laugh and joke with someone instead of just ddosing random things when i could get a kik out of doing it.....

Fair enough, and dont get me wrong this could very well be totally up front.

Just dont get discouraged if people are not jumping at this either. Too many have had similar experiences for us to not be weary of such offers. ?
