

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: [How-To Make A Professional Video Watermark \[EASY + HD\]](#)

JoeTisor - February 16, 2011, 11:11 am

Make sure to watch in HD.

[Video: <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=mwHaPr6gdm8>]

SavageBoys - February 16, 2011, 2:24 pm

Professional watermarks are non-obtrusive, this is to create a large solid "logo".

Now keep in mind a lot of videos are uploaded in 720p that's (1280x720 pixels btw) a 250x250 image is going to be very annoying to watchers.

I'm not saying this is a bad tutorial, it's just a bad way to make a watermark.

Wormag - February 18, 2011, 5:09 am

To be honest with you, the outcome looks like shit.

madkid - February 18, 2011, 10:46 am

+thx for effort, gives people the gist of making one.

Moopler - February 18, 2011, 11:08 am

For my watermarks I just lower the opacity of an image/text lol, thanks for the video though.

-| Cancer - February 18, 2011, 1:10 pm

FFS Joe! Did it take you long enough to get your message out?

If you want a FAST EASY WATERMARK:

Simply open WindowsMovieMaker, place the video file in the timeline. Then place your "background image" in the timeline. Now stretch the picture so it runs for the duration of the video file. You can even edit the colors/transparency there....

Really no point to waste everyone's time with such a long dull 6mins

Tech-N9ne - February 21, 2011, 2:54 pm yo thanks i been looking for something like this .

3Cool5School - February 22, 2011, 5:00 am

Sorry, but that's a pretty ugly watermark. I want to give constructive criticism but i don't know where to start :S

sorry again.