So, I like this girl named Kenzie. In fact, she's my best friend and I she's the best. She facetimes me every night for about 4 hours. She sees my true self and all my weirdness while I play video games and all that. The side you really don't show your crush but she still doesn't judge me. However, we do live some distance away but I am going to fly to her in the summer. She said that if I moved to her state we could date because she doesn't like a distance relationship, right? Which I understand. But this means she has somewhat feelings right? If I still have feelings when the option is available to move to her, should I? I think the wait is worth it.

I think that's a choking hazard, but figured I'd reply on here since it's kind of a dead thread.
Ain't no OP going to give you an answer to that, so yeah please don't. I like you, I want you around for at least a little while longer. ?
