Thread: Free Threads Not Allowed!

Omniscient - February 24, 2011, 5:02 pm

This section is not for offering free services. Doing so will result in a Marketplace warning, your thread being closed, and possibly a temporary ban.

Follow the rules.

DeadUser - February 24, 2011, 5:02 pm

I was about to announce this but instead you post, but I have 1 question. Where does all the free services go to then?

Entitled - February 24, 2011, 5:02 pm

Free Services & Giveaways Section out: Free Services and Giveaways

(R)e1gn - February 24, 2011, 5:12 pm

Good job Omni, now there is a free section.

Google.com - February 24, 2011, 5:17 pm

Good idea, still think there should be an official "Free services" area

Omniscient - February 24, 2011, 5:17 pm

This section was never intended for free services. Ever. The description was clear in that it says "If you would like to offer your services or need help in exchange for payment please post in this section". So I don't know why there was confusion. I've been meaning to create a forum for Free Stuff and Giveaways eventually anyways.

XiX Eb0y XiX - February 24, 2011, 5:20 pm

It doesn't say anything about free services. And skids get confused. Im sure alot of us weren't clear on it.

Anarchy - February 24, 2011, 6:48 pm

An admin/moderator could probably do this. Although it's bad of you to not read the section rules before creating two threads.

I did read the rules, but I didn't checked the 'important thread' (usually members selling things.. with stickies) <-- so I passed this..

Anyway.. Both threads were deleted (I assume moderator's did see my post here)... ?
