Thread: What colour do you like best?

LoremIpsum - June 13, 2020, 4:08 am

Hello there,

Thank you all for voting!

I decided to change my Username colour and Userbar to the Sociopaths' group design.
The combo of UB + name & stars makes it perfect I think!

I hope you all will enjoy it as much as I do now.

bluud - June 13, 2020, 4:09 am

You've forgotten to add a poll, but personally my favorite color is red. So I would go with the red option.

Although your awards are more green aswell as your picture suits the lighter color better.

I was recently invited to another group; Sociopaths.
The colour of the group (red) does appeal to me, yet the colour of the group; Ston3rz, does appeal to me too.

I like the red for the bold and attention seeking colour, which is great for action taking and what more.
The green colour suits more the calm and money-related thoughts.

What do you think? What colour do you like best?

Red fits you better tbh. Also my favourite colour is red, maybe that's why.

Velma - June 13, 2020, 4:11 am

The green looks cleaner but the red stands out, it would be bias if i just said red because its one of my favourite colours but if you look at it at a psychological point of view I would go with red you will get more clicks on your profile and if you are selling things maybe you get more sale.

End result : I would go with Red.

I will think about it and see what other members opinion is about this. But yes, the red username will come in handy when I want some attention. Especially since most members recognise my green username, as I heard.

You have a really beautiful user bar, don't be sad my man.
I wasn't in any group until I bought-in for the Ston3rz, as I support herbs whenever and wherever I can, and Pikachu sent me a message that he added me to Sociopaths haha, which is a great surprise!

Red makes you look like you're important, some admin or something.
Also, red is my fav colour (for as far as you can have on as an adult).

Favourite colours aren't limited to a certain age, but I get you.
I always love the blue colour, as it's professional and calming like FB, Twitter and many office-related companies.

The black/white associated with Neutral decisions is great too. Looking at the marketing aspect of it, but my preference is blue.
Now I can choose between green, loving it! and red, also really sweet.

Ohh hell yeah, blue is certainly nice, especially for businesses.

In my opinion if you want to seem like an authoritative figure, I'd go with the red one.
or if you wanna seem more chill and relaxed, I'd go for the green one.

That's just my opinion, best of luck with finding the colour that suits you :p

edit: ps. I like your username ahah

I agree with everything here.

Also, it's been pretty much proven that Culver's (the fast food chain) has seen some of it's success due to the blue themeing, very interesting.

I don't want to look as an Admin or whatever, as that isn't my intention regardless where I sign up.
I just want to switch colours for a better CTR on my future sales threads perhaps, but the green suits well too.
Will keep thinking about it until I made up my mind, until that time, feel free to change my mind or share your thoughts!

You could also run a small A/B test when you're selling a product.
if you have a product that sells consistently and (thus very predictable sales), you temporarly change your username colour to see if it increases/decreases sales in a significant way.

if it doesn't, I'd maybe use the green name just because it's less attention grabbing or something (eventough red is my favorite colour).

I am not going to switch back and forth between the green and red when opening any sales/service threads on here.
No ned for advice, only opinions about the Username colour and what suits best haha. I appreciate your enthusiasm though, I really do! ?

Yes, as I really love the green (herbs) colour of Ston3rz group.
Some members said to be recognising me by the colour, not even the name.. so it's a heavy choice for me to take, as I love both!

I like the green color versus the red because it's a more relaxing shade of green, whereas the red kind of gives off a vibe of unpleasantness, but that's just me.

I feel the same, it's that "take action" red like MacDonalds, STOP signs and all that.
The colour seems great though, I'll just keep it on for a few hours now to see how it suits ?

I'm not sure. I don't pay too much attention to that. Lol. But I suppose people are saying that because on a good portion of various other forums, their Staff usernames are generally red. It's a more alert and assertive color to use.

I do agree with you, the purple colour looks great. It was a "royalty" colour in the early ages as it would be really expensive to make something in purple.

Deep blue is great too, navy blue and midnight blue as well I think. Anyway, what do you think about the 2 usernames, as stated in Thread?

My apologies ^^
When I take into consideration number of awards you hold and their colors along with what they represent, along with group and avatar color, I'd go for red color for your username.
I associate "cosmos" with "purple/ galaxy" which is how your group graphic looks like anyway and I can associate username in red color with a "supernova".
I feel it's pretty cool, that color scheme and theme you got going on your profile.

Changing can be positive, especially when it attracts more customers to my (future) service/products, but again, I like both and that's mainly the reason why I can't decide.

The red is bold, brave, ready to take action, outstanding and aggressive.
The green is calming, herb-like, easy to look at and extraordinary amount the many colours I think.
