I tested positive for covid a couple weeks back. I've had it before.

First time I could barely breathe, and was extremely sick for the first two days. Second time around was a slight sore throat and runny nose.

How u feeling?

My mum got it the other day. Have you had the vaccine? How are your symptoms?

My dad gave it to the whole family :)

I got fatigued, congestion, headache, soreness, and a light cough. Had chills for a bit
Feels like a really bad cold.

I had covid a couple months ago and it was bad.
What about you? Are you feeling sick? Can you taste/smell?

How many times were you jabbed to stop from getting the disease you just got?

Being that i live in Nazi Germany (Australia) i had to have had 2 vaccines jabs by the 17 of December 2021 otherwise i'd have lost my job. I came down with a sore throat, extremely lethargic/fatigued, and reduced lung capacity/shortness of breath, This occurred 3 days ago, the first day was extremely fucked up as I had to show up to my job as it was nearly impossible for them to get someone called in, after being at work for about 30 minutes i passed out ontop of a counter i work at, i was sent home and bought a RAT test on the way home, i tested positive and have been isolating for the last few days, weed seemed to really help on day 3 as the first 2 days were complete restlessness and aching in my calves/lower body muscles, this was intense pains that lasted nonstop and kept me awake and what i thought was battling for my life. Being on the 4th day now i feel much better with no aches in the body and almost 0 respitory issues. This is beatable naturally, but be prepared for the toughest battle of your life, I've not experienced anything this hostile in 23 years of life.

Do you have any thoughts/idea/guesses on how you got it? like did someone sneeze or something

Also, what prompt you to test?

I have no idea of how transmission occoured i just know that working in hospitality you generally are in the front line of this shit so i'd assume it's happened thru work somehow, as soon as i woke up just weak asf i knew this wasn't right and decided to get a test, the sore throat all 9 yards..

Symptoms can occur days later. So, it's pretty hard to know when it happened and how.

I just tested positive as well, a few hours ago. Feeling a bit nervous about it, fevers reaching 102 already.
