Nope.

.LNK files - shortcut files - they CANNOT be attached to any email directly.

You have to compress a shortcut. We have tools to attach it to gmail, but not advertised on HF yet.
Join our Telegram mate.

url exploit is just like lnk (shortcut). you always have to compress the .url when sending online as it will not download correctly...

Yes!

mLNK v5 Builder

? How does this work?

mLNK v5.0 converts ANY exe vbs js or dll file in to a .lnk (shortcut) which bypass's SS alert and Windows Defender memory and cloud scanner which NO crypter can do alone!! Outside of a zip file you do not see the .lnk so you you can name the file any extension you want!
Or
inside a IMG or ISO, you do not see the .lnk and can show ANY extension you want!

You have to manually do runtime scan as it is a lnk. Also runtime scans (from websites) can be easily shown bypass by a simple delay.

I have a question

Why do you have to encrypt the LNK (AES 256, as I saw in the screenshot) file? Isn't it just an ordinary LNK file, that Windows and AVs won't flag? What are you really "crypting" with you private and public stubs?

This is not an attack, I'm trying to understand the process.

Thanks.

The lnk it self. A ordinary lnk that is running your personal file will not bypass AV runtime.

There we go. Fully understand now now! So the AV will detect not the LNK itself, but the code with its Target Property and flag it. So you need to encrypt the LNK file. FULLY UNDERSTAND!

hi bro,

I'm interested in the private stub, for 3 files

PureMiner (startup ON) PureClipper (startup ON) PureLogs (startup OFF)

these would be the 3 files.

Do I need a FUD cryptor? for a long runtime or for example using a shared one (PureCrypter) would it be enough?

mLNK Bypass's: Windows Defender, Windows Defender Memory, Windows Defender Cloud Scanner, Smart Screen Alert.

We do pentesting against AVs runtime directly against the AV in a real test. Those online runtime scanners, can easily be tricked with a deal and if anything pops up during those runtime online scanners such as a putty.exe (during a putty test) it will act as a detection, because something appeared!

You can contact our Telegram team for faster support and responses.

Interested in purchasing this awesome builder, but a couple of questions, if you please:

1. Does it still bypass WD, when both eventviewer and fodhelper methods are patched, as far as I know?

2. Does it still pass AMSI and SS, without getting busted/deleted in the process?

Thanks!

Yes all on our Telegram. The LNK last for a very long time. It is not like a EXE crypter, where you have to pretty much reFUD daily. mLNK's output is different each time which keeps the file bypassing for a very long time!

Thank you. Extension is .lnk,
Outside of a zip file you do not see the .lnk so you you can name the file any extension you want!
Or
inside a IMG or ISO, you do not see the .lnk and can show ANY extension you want!
