I'm just wondering because I see sales threads for cheats in Fortnite and Call of Duty. I wonder if anyone has used any of these cheats and if they have gotten away with them or if they were banned?

I used to mod Halo 2 back in the day and it was really fun.

So you were the reason why it was impossible to reach level 50 huh? Flying around the map in a scarab blasting everyone lmao.

I've never used cheats in competitive games personally, I don't see the appeal or the payoff. I enjoy winning competitive games because I know I outplayed the other team, not because I cheated. I've sincerely never understood how cheaters get any gratification, I've always imagined they're just shitheads that like to ruin the fun for everyone else, or they actually think anyone cares about their rank.

Lol, I used mostly matchmaking mods so usually I would rubber band my trigger down and it would instantly headshot snipe everyone as soon as they spawned. Every now and then I would switch to fun mods, they would go to shoot me and a train would fly out of their gun or something.

I remember those days very well hahaha. Halo 2 was such a fun game. I loved just playing customs and showing off all the super bounces, glitches, out of map tricks I'd learn from this one website, I can't remember the name, YouTube wasn't even out yet. I still have so many ingrained in my head, the superbounce on Ascension near sniper spawn that let you get on top of that big ass tower.

Super bounces were the best, then the glitches to get out of the map. I liked all the easter eggs like looking up at the ring at the right angle on one map and seeing the guys face, or hidden names in the game.

I used to cheat in games but it gets boring quickly.

I currently use a computer vision tool for 2k and MLB the show. Its kind of crazy how good it is tbh.

Are you able to use it online against other players?

I am indeed. Basically you have to train the tool and it shoots and hits for you. That's the very short version of it. In my spare time, I am trying to reverse engineer it because, I genuinely think I could make much needed improvements but, I'm not sure ill ever accomplish it.

That's interesting. I didn't know there were cheaters in sports games. I have only ever seen them in FPS.

I've used cheats in MOBAs, FPS's, sports games. It seems like if you look hard enough you cant find exploits for just about any game.

Are these only on PC or do you cheat on console as well?

The one I'm referring to specifically is for console and pc. I currently only play console games though.

How does it work? Did you have to do something to your console?

No modding of the console required. Basically it works because of the utilization of remote play on console. You run remote play through your pc while sharing your pc's connection with your physical Xbox. The exploit runs in conjunction with remote play.

Oh wow. I don't think they would be able to catch that right?

I would be highly surprised if they did. The software basically emulates human movement with a built in controller within the exploit. You would just have to make it super obvious for them to even have an idea that you were using it. Even then, you aren't injecting any 3rd party software into your sessions so there really isn't any proof that you are doing anything malicious.

Would you be able to convo me a video or picture of it working? I'm very interested right now

Never used any cheats in games as I never believed it would make me better so there was no point. However modding is different IMO I used to love the hell out of modding Oblivion and Gary's Mod haha.

I did it just for fun. It definitely didn't make me any better. Sometimes it was to troll, then sometimes to help others rank up.

Sorry that wasn't intended to sound sour, I don't have any issues with any users just to be clear. Lol yeah I know some that do for that as well or boosting for pay.

Ah nah I didn't take it that way. I did it for fun. I had a lot of people that would supply me with 2 month xbox live codes to boost them up. They had to supply the codes since I would usually get banned automatically after 6 hours of modding.

I did something similar using AutoIT to farm a fuckload of coins on UFC 3 so I could buy packs for their stupid ultimate team. There was basically an offline mode that I could enter in, keep throwing overhand rights until I got flash KOd, repeat lol. This MLB bot sounds way more advanced though.

Yeah sounds very similar.

Used some in pubg, made me feel it boring, it kills the amusing in games

I've used cheats in numerous numerous games, even though i would consider myself an above average skilled player in most games I play. A lot of the time its just fun for some reason.

However I took advantage of many games where cheating can be turned into a revenue stream, Escape from tarkov was the best for me, boost raids, selling specific items and in game currency.

I've been banned in almost all games I've cheated in at least once but typically don't exactly try to hide it. Only one I hide it in was CS for a while and lasted like 3 months.

But I have cheated in CS, PUBG, Rust, Escape from Tarkov, Fortnite, TF2, DayZ and most battlefield games.

Haven't played with cheats in probably 6+ months though, making money off of EFT became much more saturated so I eventually fell out of that. Plus, I'm still the type that gets annoyed when playing against cheaters so its a double edged sword.

I only played pubg very few times. I was an H1Z1 player, that was the best one imo.

Did you cheat on console or pc? Goods showed me how his cheats work and I don't think they could be detected.

PC only, I stopped playing console when I was about 12 so didn't know anything about modded consoles and all that back then

Tyr - October 5, 2024, 3:00 pm

I've used some on a crappy PC I didn't care about without any identifying information tied to me because most of them are persistent rootkits. They work though, lol.

F4tDoinkz - October 5, 2024, 3:40 pm

Once upon a time I owned a jtaged Xbox 360 and hosted Mw2 lobbies. I had fun because MW2 had plenty of cool mods. I was a young teenager charging people a ton of money for these lobbies. It was great. Since then I mostly only mod single player games or games like GTA.

Game - October 5, 2024, 11:36 pm

I’ve cheated on console and PC. It started on Xbox 360 with gamesave mods and profile editors.

Then I moved up to a JTAG/RGH, now you can do almost anything on a lot of games on the 360.

I've also cheated on PC games, although in my later years I don't really enjoy cheating and realised it can get expensive having to buy a game again and again when you get banned, so whenever I'm feeling destructive I just dust off the Xbox 360 and go cheat on there instead.

I've not used any cheats from here thus far, and I probably won't. If however, I do. I'll let you know how they work out.

SoulZeh - October 6, 2024, 2:14 am

There is a new kind of way of cheating now which I find hella crazy, it's a chip that you put into your computer, the shit looks insane and I bet it's nearly close to impossible to detect.

Just read about it, shit is insane.
