Wow, that is quite impressive. But please don't take this habit further. Having HF on your forehead could lead to unexpected reactions.

I hope I didn't give you any ideas by posting this. lol ?

Hahah I used a tac for a wall, ink mixed with ashes, and just stick and poke Nice. You're the second person now that I've seen get HF tattooed on them since I've been here. If that's not loyalty, then I don't know what is. May I ask what motivated you, or gave you the idea to go thru with it?

That's awesome. How long does it stay or is it permanent?

Let's see if you fix up your deal disputes....

PRORATTER - December 2, 2024, 6:48 pm
Did you remember to disinfect the area before poking? There is always a risk of blood poisoning. D:

Just expressing concern for a fellow HF member.

Well done, anyway. lol :-)

He has one from what I see. Did he have a second to make it plural?

There is a second one.

is it just me or does this look like sharpie / not a tat?

Imagine8 - December 3, 2024, 6:22 am
I mean...as long as you like it then fair enough!

Yeah I've done a stick & poke with stamping ink before - twice.
I don't see anything in OP's photos that suggest this is a tattoo tbh. Just not seeing any of the blood, swelling, red areas, etc.

MAYBE OP did a super thin line in the sharpie area, and it's just hard to see & fresh, but I don't know.
Just seems off.

if it walks like a sharpie marker
and tastes like a sharpie marker and it quacks
then it's definitely a duck.

but yeah, that looks like a sharpie for clout, not a tat of HF.

OP, can you share an updated photo? Would like to see the actual scar tissue proof here. thx
