Thread: Are you not intentionally a gay magnet?

f o r m i d a b l e - March 17, 2025, 8:17 pm
Dude, more men especially married suddenly approach me with subtle gayness. When I'm at a camp laundry, there was a meaningless encounter. One asked for my number at a resort. Another said we should attend a restaurant and watch my favorite documentaries. I don't carry any gay vibes. It's like they think or want me to be queer, or I'm in a parallel universe or some shit. Does this happen often?

I wouldn't consider myself a chick magnet (as I would like), but ladies are more discreet signs to me.

Married men? Maybe, they're just looking for friends.

I've had this all my life, just not with gay married men. ALL men. I've even had tons of women (coworkers, etc) thinking I'm gay. I hate it because if they think I'm gay, that means they instantly are not attracted to me so it's like I'm instantly handicapped.

You have to start talking more about football.....obviously not to the ladies, but it's beneficial if they hear it.
You know, we gays don't like football.

From what I understand you could actually be gay but you haven't realised it yet. You need to understand your attractions and feelings and it's okay to explore and discover what feels right for you.

OP it is ok to be gay we are here for you.

It sounds like you're experiencing some strange encounters with men approaching you with subtle gayness. It could just be a coincidence, but if it's happening frequently, maybe there's something about your demeanor that is attracting these advances. Have you tried addressing the situation directly with these men to see where they're coming from?

I'm not gay, and I know myself.

Sometimes it is straightforward like asking me if I'm straight on IG. I don't have any gay attributes, that's why my situation is weird, so I wonder if it happens to others. Weird because I don't flirt or do anything. I think it's a good idea to as you mentioned to be straightforward, and just tell them what makes them think I'm gay, but I don't know if I'll get a straight answer.

Yeah I know the strange feeling. I wonder if anyone is pissed or whatever if it happens to them, especially if they don't appear gay at all like me. It's kind of funny I guess.

There are some odd people out there, some are really gay looking for your ass but some just want to be friendly and get out of their homes hahahha

I wondered why this was happening to my late husband for a while. It turned out his business competitor spread a rumour that he was gay. The man had moved here from China and thought that would kill his competitor's business. That's why men kept asking him what time he knocked off from his mobile food van.

It does NOT mean they are instantly not attracted to you, but it does mean they won't want to offend you by hitting on you because a lot of gay men get all kinds of creeped out by having woman lust for them.

I don't have the best luck with girls, but am handsome but just underweight, gotta get my weight up, gay guys hit on me a lot and I'm like wow how about the women lmao. Nothing against gay people at all I find them funny and they have fun personalities but I'm straight thank you haha. One thing I gotta say about gay people, they are really tough individuals when you think about all the stigma and shit they have the endure, and they still stay themselves and keep pushing.

One time I went to Fire Island on business and it was such a unique funny fucking place. The people were a lot of fun to be around and I wish I can be that happy. I'll never forget the landlord I was trying to make real estate deal with was walking down a block and there were tough looking spanish laborers working on a building that looked completely normal, and even they were gay going "Oh hiiiii Richieeeeeee!". When I was younger going to a tough school in New York it was looked down upon, but being a mature adult I kind of idolize them and they're free spirits. Fire Island was great, it's like they have they're own planet hahaha.

I was in an ok mood too, was having my drinks and the gay staff at the restaurant's energy rubbed off on me, they were there to be happy, have a nice time, and I started to have lots of fun. One guy seemed interested in me though flirting with me and I straight out told him "I love you all but let's not get carried away now!" and looked at him in a jokingly stay away matter and we laughed so hard we were both laughing hysterically. They really are good people lol!

So I should just test by putting my penis in a mans mouth?

I wouldn't recommend that since it would be considered sexual assault. You would be better of asking someone who is gay and has experience with this.

jcole - March 19, 2025, 11:21 am

If someone approaches me on some SUS shit then I just be polite and exit out of the conversation. I find it hard to believe married men are approaching you on some gay shit. More than likely just want a friend for that moment in time.

Is this why it's so hard to make friends as I have gotten older? Other men think I'm just hitting on them?

f o r m i d a b l e - March 21, 2025, 9:25 pm

XtremeDiscount Finally I can relate to you, because I am considered handsome which is basically what it is. Yes, I also encountered that "Oh Hiiiiiiii", and it was cringe for me at camp laundromat, like who would even say that for what reason, so I turned at him very slowly like I'm about to look but don't really want to look. I explained how gay this was and people just laugh. You can sense the agenda by men looking into your soul.

(Mar 19, 2025 12:07 AM)N604 Wrote: [CITE] There are some odd people out there, some are really gay looking for your ass but some just want to be friendly and get out of their homes hahahha
Dude, I already know how to discern those two. Some of the gays will pretend they want to get out of their homes, but you sense irony, and then they ask if you're straight on IG. It's not like the movies.

(Mar 19, 2025 11:08 AM)vrs Wrote: [CITE] So you get hit on by gays but not the women

You are a gay lying in wait sir.
You make it sound like a lot of women hit certain men. Not realistic. If they're 10s or even 8s, they don't need to hit for shit, but for decent looking people idk about that.

Millions of men are married with children. They can still be gay. They can hide their gayness because they don't want to be known that way. The gaze, tone, and wording reveals the gayness of it when he's hitting on you.

It's very obvious scenarios:
-asking me if I'm straight
-asking for my number
-flirting, intense eye contact, boasting
-saying he likes my hair, and wanting hanging out
-compliments

Being friendly and advancing in a gay way is discernable. Stop changing the dialogue.

I prefer not to talk/interact with random men at all, except for employees or peers which is professional exception. I rather be talking to bad bitches and rarely does.

You're a bad judge who didn't read me. Don't be making false assumptions.

the fuck we dont! we just dont care about the score. Those nut hugging american Football uniform bottoms are YUMMM ?

also as a gay dude, i gotta say... what the actual fuck! I never randomly get hit on! but then again, i dont really do a lot of things like you guys have been describing.. i might start doing laundry at the laundromat or some shit lol. i need to start hanging out at these places and hitting on straight guys apparently, because this seems like an untapped market for me.

But yeah, the fact that I never get randomly hit on makes me a sad panda. :(

Dude I am SO curious what these dudes are saying as opening lines! It has to be fairly slick because they're cruising you (yes thats the term) in public. But cruising for straight dudes that just want anon sex in public is risky so there's usually an art to it with certain wording and looks and stuff. I guarantee I'm not the only one interested in hearing the details watching this thread. ?

Thanks for being a kickass sport about all this, and truly just kinda roll with it and take it as a massive compliment. You might wanna "butch it up" a little bit by growing some facial hair, etc. Sounds like you're probably the perfect twink young muscle type that so many guys (including "straight guys") secretly lust after. I've found, after living in both "red" and "blue" states that there's about DOUBLE the amount of guys willing to fuck around in cars and restrooms that are "straight" in red states vs. finding NSA man4man stuff in blue states. not sure why, its just something ive noticed.

Anyways, if you are up for it, I'm also sure people lookin at this saga are interested in what you look like, but posting a picture would be pretty insane. Instead, maybe just find some rando that kinda looks like you or use AI to generate a similar built dude just so we have a visual of what makes all the boiz come to ur yard lmfao.

Nah, it's unnecessary, I pass and so do other victims. If you need inspiration, then it's common sense, look at pop stars or whatever like latest cosmetics, they're lustful. I won't be scrutinized into further PTSD through entertaining the gayness. All I will say is I take care of myself (i.e. facial cleansers, use a soap, brush teeth, so forth.) and lost a lot of fat before these things happened. I respect my presentability and health. This thread was meant to see if there are others who experience this occurrence.

It doesn't matter what they say, hence none of it worked on me. Also I was under the impression to be mutually friendly. So I'm not an example of that.
