Thread: Whats the scariest thing that has ever happened to you?

Yanix - October 3, 2025, 10:54 pm

We all have those moments that cause our heart to race, our palms to sweat and left us rattled long after the moment is over. A near car accident, lost in an unexpected location, a dangerous situation or an unexplainable event that had you questioning the real world.

For me, it was when I got dengue fever on and off that lasted for more than a week. I was completely exhausted and to make it worse, it happened during the pandemic when most hospitals were full and it felt like help was hard to reach.

Fearful moments shows how exposed we are, but frightful moments teach us grit and bravery like nothing else can teach you about yourself.

How about you? What is the most frightening thing that has ever happened to you?

Sounds creepy, but it’s funny how they just laugh it off like it’s nothing. I’d probably be double-checking every corner of the house. Ghost or not, that fridge opening on its own would freak me out. LOL ?

Lol ? for real brother, I'd be gone before anyone could explain. Ghosts can keep their midnight snacks. I'll sleep peacefully somewhere else! ?

I remember I once was in the car with someone, they had a brain-fart and starting driving in the wrong direction unto incoming traffic. After the incident they didn't even remember what happened. Super strange.

I'll never forget the fat kid jumping on me in a pool and holding me under. Mfker has a scar till this day from my feral bite.

When I was younger, I went on a vacation in Greece and spent most of my days at the beach. There was an island nearby, and in a moment of poor judgement, I decided to swim out to it. By the time I needed to swim back, the current had become so strong that I was drifting far from my intended path. I managed to make it back, but if I hadn't, no one was around to notice I was in trouble. Even the best swimmer in the world is powerless against a strong current.

Yeah, that's one of those moments you don't forget easily. Wrong-way driving is so dangerous. Strange that they had no recollection of it at all.

I was lucky that nothing happened and we 'only' drove on the wrong side for a few moments before going to the side.
I'm NGL but for a second there I thought to myself. "Welp, I'm fucked."

That must've been pure panic mode for you. LOL

I'd be gripping the seat thinking the exact same thing. ? Glad you guys had a safe way out. ?

Pretty wild, getting held under like that is no joke. At least he learned a permanent lesson ?

My car broke down in the middle of nowhere at night.
I felt completely helpless.

Seeing people make threads in the lounge.

Man, that sounds like a real nightmare situation. Cars always seem to break down at the worst times. I bet it felt like forever until you got help.
