

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: [CMD Buffer maximum but not enough - \[HELP\]](#)

AnalyseR - March 29, 2011, 5:20 am

I've changed the cmd buffer to maximum but still... it will not append my huge line in to a text file.....

Any suggestions?
(only batch-script like)
?

White Light - March 29, 2011, 2:49 pm

(Mar 29, 2011 05:20 AM)DeathFaker Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've changed the cmd buffer to maximum but still... it will not append my huge line in to a text file..

Any suggestions?
(only batch-script like)
?

What exactly is the line you're trying to append? I just appended 160 characters with no issue.

AnalyseR - March 29, 2011, 3:01 pm

(Mar 29, 2011 02:49 PM)Gulfstream Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) What exactly is the line you're trying to append? I just appended 160 characters with no issue.
just a line much bigger than 160 chars... a lot more...

White Light - March 29, 2011, 3:04 pm

I need to know the ACTUAL line. If you don't want to post it, send it in a PM.

AnalyseR - March 29, 2011, 4:27 pm

(Mar 29, 2011 03:04 PM)Gulfstream Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I need to know the ACTUAL line. If you don't want to post it, send it in a PM.
i'm using my phone now. cant do that. it's just an obfuscated vbs generated with my downloader generator. it's in my threads you can check it.

White Light - March 29, 2011, 6:37 pm

Well, if it contains characters like:
Code < > ! % ^ & * | ~then it won't perform as expected.

Pretty much, use replace in notepad (CTRL+H) and replace all of those characters with ^ in front. Remember to replace the ^ first to avoid multiples.

For example, ^ becomes ^^, | becomes ^|, etc.

AnalyseR - March 29, 2011, 6:50 pm

(Mar 29, 2011 06:37 PM)Gulfstream Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well, if it contains characters like:
Code < > ! % ^ & * | ~then it won't perform as expected.

Pretty much, use replace in notepad (CTRL+H) and replace all of those characters with ^ in front. Remember to replace the ^ first to avoid multiples.

For example, ^ becomes ^, | becomes |, etc. i escaped those characters.. still buffer not enough..

White Light - March 29, 2011, 7:13 pm

(Mar 29, 2011 06:50 PM)DeathFaker Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) i escaped those characters.. still buffer not enough..

How long is the string? Can it possibly be split into more than one line.

iGnite - March 29, 2011, 7:56 pm

(Mar 29, 2011 06:50 PM)DeathFaker Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) i escaped those characters.. still buffer not enough..

Parenthesis should also be escaped. Like so:

```
Code msgbox^("iGnite"^)
```

Just making sure all the bases are covered before moving on to other solutions.

White Light - March 29, 2011, 8:47 pm

(Mar 29, 2011 07:56 PM)iGnite Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Parenthesis should also be escaped. Like so:

```
Code msgbox^("iGnite"^)
```

Just making sure all the bases are covered before moving on to other solutions.

I knew I was forgetting something...

Also, % and ! don't get escaped using ^, you double them up...for example,
! becomes !! and % becomes %%.

AnalyseR - March 29, 2011, 11:40 pm

Guys... come on. Escaping is not the problem here. The buffer is. My line just can't be fit in to buffer space...

?

iGnite - March 30, 2011, 11:24 am

We're just covering the bases mate. Why not just post the line of code so we can work with it?

AnalyseR - March 31, 2011, 7:00 am

(Mar 30, 2011 11:24 AM)iGnite Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) We're just covering the bases mate. Why not just post the line of code so we can work with it?

I appreciate it you know that...

There's a huge line generated by my own Downloader Generator. It's just an obfuscated VBS downloader and i need a way to echo it (or append it with ANY way different than echo) in one command. Don't wanna split it. You can find my generator in my threads if you wanna see what i mean. I can't post such big content here, it probably would be a problem....

Thanks in advance ?

iGnite - April 1, 2011, 1:20 pm

To evade buffer limitations you can use the 'find' command in a single line of code. I used a mock sentence to portray the possibility of it's application.

```
Code %iGniteThePoison% @echo off & find /v "iGniteThePoison" < %0 > output.txt & goto :eof
```

Their honour precarious, their liberty provisional, lasting only until the discovery of their crime; their position unstable, like that of the poet who one day was feasted at every table, applauded in every theatre in London, and on the next was driven from every lodging, unable to find a pillow upon which to lay his head, turning the mill like Samson and saying like him: "The two sexes shall die, each in a place apart!"; excluded even, save on the days of general disaster when the majority rally round the victim as the Jews rallied round Dreyfus, from the sympathy—at times from the society—of their fellows, in whom they inspire only disgust at seeing themselves as they are, portrayed in a mirror which, ceasing to flatter them, accentuates every blemish that they have refused to observe in themselves, and makes them understand that what they have been calling their love (a thing to which, playing upon the word, they have by association annexed all that poetry, painting, music, chivalry, asceticism have contrived to add to love) springs not from an ideal of beauty which they have chosen but from an incurable malady; like the Jews again (save some who will associate only with others of their race and have always on their lips ritual words and consecrated pleasantries), shunning one another, seeking out those who are most directly their opposite, who do not desire their company, pardoning their rebuffs, moved to ecstasy by their condescension; but also brought into the company of their own kind by the ostracism that strikes them, the opprobrium under which they have fallen, having finally been invested, by a persecution similar to that of Israel, with the physical and moral characteristics of a race, sometimes beautiful, often hideous, finding (in spite of all the mockery with which he who, more closely blended with, better assimilated to the opposing race, is relatively, in appearance, the least inverted, heaps upon him who has remained more so) a relief in frequenting the society of their kind, and even some corroboration of their own life, so much so that, while steadfastly denying that they are a race (the name of which is the vilest of insults), those who succeed in concealing the fact that they belong to it they readily unmask, with a view less to injuring them, though they have no scruple about that, than to excusing themselves; and, going in search (as a doctor seeks cases of appendicitis) of cases of inversion in history, taking pleasure in recalling that Socrates was one of themselves, as the Israelites claim that Jesus was one of them, without reflecting that there were no abnormalities when homosexuality was the norm, no anti-Christians before Christ, that the disgrace alone makes the crime because it has allowed to survive only those who remained obdurate to every warning, to every example, to every punishment, by virtue of an innate disposition so peculiar that it is more repugnant to other men (even though it may be accompanied by exalted moral qualities) than certain other vices which exclude those qualities, such as theft, cruelty, breach of faith, vices better understood and so more readily excused by the generality of men; forming a freemasonry far more extensive, more powerful and less suspected than that of the Lodges, for it rests upon an identity of tastes, needs, habits, dangers, apprenticeship, knowledge, traffic, glossary, and one in which the members themselves, who intend not to know one another, recognise one another immediately by natural or conventional, involuntary or deliberate signs which indicate one of his congeners to the beggar in the street, in the great nobleman whose carriage door he is shutting, to the father in the suitor for his daughter's hand, to him who has sought healing, absolution, defence, in the doctor, the priest, the barrister to whom he has had recourse; all of them obliged to protect their own secret but having their part in a secret shared with the others, which the rest of humanity does not suspect and which means that to them the most wildly improbable tales of adventure seem true, for in this romantic, anachronistic life the ambassador is a bosom friend of the felon, the prince, with a certain independence of action with which his aristocratic breeding has furnished him, and which the trembling little cit would lack, on leaving the duchess's party goes off to confer in private with the hooligan; a reprobate part of the human whole, but an important part, suspected where it does not exist, flaunting itself, insolent and unpunished, where its existence is never guessed; numbering its adherents everywhere, among the people, in the army, in the church, in the prison, on the throne; living, in short, at least to a great extent, in a playful and perilous intimacy with the men of the other race, provoking them, playing with them by speaking of its vice as of something alien to it; a game that is rendered easy by the blindness or duplicity of the others, a game that may be kept up for years until the day of the scandal, on which these lion-tamers are devoured; until then, obliged to make a secret of their lives, to turn away their eyes from the things on which they would naturally fasten them, to fasten them upon those from which they would naturally turn away, to change the gender of many of the words in their vocabulary, a social constraint, slight in comparison with the inward constraint which their vice, or what is improperly so called, imposes upon them with regard not so much now to others as to themselves, and in such a way that to themselves it does not appear a vice.

Using the tag "iGniteThePoison" I was able to eliminate the batch code from the output. This method is similar to how batch virus append and over write files.

AnalyseR - April 1, 2011, 11:27 pm

(Apr 1, 2011 01:20 PM)iGnite Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) To evade buffer limitations you can use the 'find' command in a single line of code. I used a mock sentence to portray the possibility of it's application.

```
Code %iGniteThePoison% @echo off & find /v "iGniteThePoison" < %0 > output.txt & goto :eof
```

Their honour precarious, their liberty provisional, lasting only until the discovery of their crime; their position unstable, like that of the poet who one day was feasted at every table, applauded in every theatre in London, and on the next was driven from every lodging, unable to find a pillow upon which to lay his head, turning the mill like Samson and saying like him: "The two sexes shall die, each in a place apart!"; excluded even, save on the days of general disaster when the majority rally round the slave as the Jews rallied round Dreyfus, from the sympathy—at times from the society—of their fellows, in whom they inspire only disgust at seeing themselves as they are, portrayed in a mirror which, ceasing to flatter them, accentuates every blemish that they have refused to observe in themselves, and makes them understand that what they have been calling their love (a thing to which, playing upon the word, they have by association annexed all that poetry, painting, music, chivalry, asceticism have contrived to add to love) springs not from an ideal of beauty which they have chosen but from an incurable malady; like the Jews again (save some who will associate only with others of their race and have always on their lips ritual words and consecrated pleasantries), shunning one another, seeking out those who are most directly their opposite, who do not desire their company, pardoning their rebuffs, moved to ecstasy by their condescension; but also brought into the company of their own kind by the ostracism that strikes them, the opprobrium under which they have fallen, having finally been invested, by a persecution similar to that of Israel, with the physical and moral characteristics of a race, sometimes beautiful, often hideous, finding (in spite of all the mockery with which he who, more closely blended with, better assimilated to the opposing race, is relatively, in appearance, the least inverted, heaps upon him who has remained more so) a relief in frequenting the society of their kind, and even some corroboration of their own life, so much so that, while steadfastly denying that they are a race (the name of which is the vilest of insults), those who succeed in concealing the fact that they belong to it they readily unmask, with a view less to injuring them, though they have no scruple about that, than to excusing themselves; and, going in search (as a doctor seeks cases of appendicitis) of cases of inversion in history, taking pleasure in recalling that Socrates was one of themselves, as the Israelites claim that Jesus was one of them, without reflecting that there were no abnormalities when homosexuality was the norm, no anti-Christians before Christ, that the disgrace alone makes the crime because it has allowed to survive only those who remained obdurate to every warning, to every example, to every punishment, by virtue of an innate disposition so peculiar that it is more repugnant to other men (even though it may be accompanied by exalted moral qualities) than certain other vices which exclude those qualities, such as theft, cruelty, breach of faith, vices better understood and so more readily excused by the generality of men; forming a freemasonry far more extensive, more powerful and less suspected than that of the Lodges, for it rests upon an identity of tastes, needs, habits, dangers, apprenticeship, knowledge, traffic, glossary, and one in which the members themselves, who intend not to know one another, recognise one another immediately by natural or conventional, involuntary or deliberate signs which indicate one of his congeners to the beggar in the street, in the great nobleman whose carriage door he is shutting, to the father in the suitor for his daughter's hand, to him who has sought healing, absolution, defence, in the doctor, the priest, the barrister to whom he has had recourse; all of them obliged to protect their own secret but having their part in a secret shared with the others, which the rest of humanity does not suspect and which means that to them the most wildly improbable tales of adventure seem true, for in this romantic, anachronistic life the ambassador is a bosom friend of the felon, the prince, with a certain independence of action with which his aristocratic breeding has furnished him, and which the trembling little cit would lack, on leaving the duchess's party goes off to confer in private with the hooligan; a reprobate part of the human whole, but an important part, suspected where it does not exist, flaunting itself, insolent and unpunished, where its existence is never guessed; numbering its adherents everywhere, among the people, in the army, in the church, in the prison, on the throne; living, in short, at least to a great extent, in a playful and perilous intimacy with the men of the other race, provoking them, playing with them by speaking of its vice as of something alien to it; a game that is rendered easy by the blindness or duplicity of the others, a game that may be kept up for years until the day of the scandal, on which these lion-tamers are devoured; until then, obliged to make a secret of their lives, to turn away their eyes from the things on which they would naturally fasten them, to fasten them upon those from which they would naturally turn away, to change the gender of many of the words in their vocabulary, a social constraint, slight in comparison with the inward constraint which their vice, or what is improperly so called, imposes upon them with regard not so much now to others as to themselves, and in such a way that to themselves it does not appear a vice.

Using the tag "iGniteThePoison" I was able to eliminate the batch code from the output. This method is similar to how batch virus append and over write files.

I fully understand the concept but mmmm not working for me?

It's highly possible that i mistype something. Could i have a screen of the command and one of the result if you don't mind?

ps: if this gonna work, i'll freaking love you.. i need this so badly!!!

?

iGnite - April 2, 2011, 3:01 am

[img]http://www.mega-revoluzion.comuv.com/Qwerty.png[/img]

[img]http://www.mega-revoluzion.comuv.com/Output.png[/img]

AnalyseR - April 2, 2011, 3:03 am

(Apr 2, 2011 03:01 AM)iGnite Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#)

[img]http://www.mega-revoluzion.comuv.com/Qwerty.png[/img]

[img]http://www.mega-revoluzion.comuv.com/Output.png[/img]

I'm gonna try this!!!

(I did actually but, who knows...)

?

LOVE YA if this works for what i wanna do :))

iGnite - April 2, 2011, 3:20 am

(Apr 2, 2011 03:03 AM)DeathFaker Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm gonna try this!!!

(I did actually but, who knows...)

?

LOVE YA if this works for what i wanna do :))

I'd recommend you pipe the output of the batch file into a log to view any errors that may be occurring. This way we can sort out why your having trouble making this work; It works fine on my Windows 7.