

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: [Die Hard 4 \[Live Free or Die Hard\]](#)

Haunted™ - March 31, 2011, 7:45 am

Just watched the movie today,
I had it in my pc from a long time ago .

What an Amazing movie ,
I recommend to all my hacker friends .

Here is a quick review
Spoiler (Click to View)

Live Free or Die Hard (released as Die Hard 4.0 outside North America), is a 2007 American action film, and the fourth installment in the Die Hard series. The film was directed by Len Wiseman and stars Bruce Willis as John McClane. The main plot finds McClane fighting a gang of cyber terrorists who plan to hack FBI computers. The film was based on the 1997 article "A Farewell to Arms" written for Wired magazine by John Carlin.[3] The film's North American release date was June 27, 2007.[2]

After the project was stalled due to the September 11, 2001 attacks, production eventually began, and the film's title was switched several times. A variety of visual effects were used for action sequences, even though Wiseman and Willis stated that they wanted to limit the amount of CGI in the film. In separate incidents during filming, both Willis and his stunt double were injured. Unlike the prior three films in the series, the US rating was PG-13 rather than R. An unrated version of Live Free or Die Hard containing profanity and violence not included in the theatrical version was made available for the DVD release.

The film received generally positive reviews, earning a 82% approval rating on Rotten Tomatoes and 69/100 from Metacritic. The film had total international box office gross receipts of $383.5 million. For the DVD release, 20th Century Fox pioneered a new kind of DRM, Digital Copy, that tries to weaken the incentives for consumers to learn how to rip discs by offering them a downloadable version with studio-imposed restrictions. The score for the film was released on July 2, 2007.

The Man With No Name - March 31, 2011, 7:51 am

Its a great movie but personally i dont think that it beats die hard 3, its much more oldschool and the plot is more understandable to people of all ages.

Spy[Emo] - March 31, 2011, 7:52 am

I liked the movie but it was to unrealistic. Not saying action movies are but this was wayy over the top.

Haunted™ - March 31, 2011, 7:55 am

It was based on mass hacking ,and destruction.
Storyline was good

The GRim - March 31, 2011, 8:12 am

(Mar 31, 2011 07:51 AM)The Man With No Name Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Its a great movie but personally i dont think that it beats die hard 3, its much more oldschool and the plot is more understandable to people of all ages.

If U Start Seeing From The Beginning Only U'll Understand The Full Story.

The Whole Die Hard Series Are Good.

Sword Fish Is Also A Hacker Based Movie.

ichosemypath - April 3, 2011, 7:01 pm

Good flick. The Presidential speech over the hijacked network video feed is great.

[Video: http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=JK_JUBxuCA5]

Haunted™ - April 3, 2011, 7:22 pm

(Apr 3, 2011 07:01 PM)ichosemypath Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Good flick. The Presidential speech over the hijacked network video feed is great.

[Video: http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=JK_JUBxuCA5]

Yea ,was awesome ,it was edited from original speeches.

Chronix - April 3, 2011, 9:47 pm

Dang this isa horrific movie.

counterpoint - April 3, 2011, 9:54 pm

Doesn't really go with the original Die Hards, but definitely one every hacking enthusiast should see.

"Yippee Ki yay, mother-fucker!"

Vitani's Mate - April 3, 2011, 11:18 pm

This movie is awesome but the first movie beats them all though.

-mothered- - April 4, 2011, 2:02 am

Awesome movie Indeed.

Personally, I liked the first one the best, with "Hans Gruber". Very Intelligent guy, who played an excellent role.

Vitani's Mate - April 4, 2011, 2:19 am

(Apr 4, 2011 02:02 AM)mothered Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Awesome movie Indeed.

Personally, I liked the first one the best, with "Hans Gruber". Very Intelligent guy, who played an excellent role.

Hans Gruber is awesome =P

But he was a bad guy so John had to kill him lol, But Simon (In the 3rd movie) Was Hans Grubers brother.

b4bug - April 4, 2011, 5:17 am

This movie is awesome. The Whole Die Hard Series Are Good.

juzten - April 5, 2011, 8:50 pm

This is a great movie, i recommend it to everyone

Vitani's Mate - April 5, 2011, 9:34 pm

I am thinking about buying all the movies lol =P i got 1st one and the 3rd on tape.

fro57 - April 14, 2011, 12:41 pm

(Mar 31, 2011 07:45 AM)Haunted™ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Just watched the movie today, I had it in my pc from a long time ago .

What an Amazing movie ,
I recommend to all my hacker friends .

Here is a quick review
Spoiler (Click to View)

Live Free or Die Hard (released as Die Hard 4.0 outside North America), is a 2007 American action film, and the fourth installment in the Die Hard series. The film was directed by Len Wiseman and stars Bruce Willis as John McClane. The main plot finds McClane fighting a gang of cyber terrorists who plan to hack FBI computers. The film was based on the 1997 article "A Farewell to Arms" written for Wired magazine by John Carlin.[3] The film's North American release date was June 27, 2007.[2]

After the project was stalled due to the September 11, 2001 attacks, production eventually began, and the film's title was switched several times. A variety of visual effects were used for action sequences, even though Wiseman and Willis stated that they wanted to limit the amount of CGI in the film. In separate incidents during filming, both Willis and his stunt double were injured. Unlike the prior three films in the series, the US rating was PG-13 rather than R. An unrated version of Live Free or Die Hard containing profanity and violence not included in the theatrical version was made available for the DVD release.

The film received generally positive reviews, earning a 82% approval rating on Rotten Tomatoes and 69/100 from Metacritic. The film had total international box office gross receipts of $383.5 million. For the DVD release, 20th Century Fox pioneered a new kind of DRM, Digital Copy, that tries to weaken the incentives for consumers to learn how to rip discs by offering them a downloadable version with studio-imposed restrictions. The score for the film was released on July 2, 2007.

i havent watched the other parts of die hard....so will it be fine...watching directly die hard 4 ???
reply

xtraesp - April 14, 2011, 1:30 pm

(Mar 31, 2011 07:45 AM)Haunted™ Wrote: (CITE) Just watched the movie today,
I had it in my pc from a long time ago .

What an Amazing movie ,
I recommend to all my hacker friends .

Here is a quick review
Spoiler (Click to View)

Live Free or Die Hard (released as Die Hard 4.0 outside North America), is a 2007 American action film, and the fourth installment in the Die Hard series. The film was directed by Len Wiseman and stars Bruce Willis as John McClane. The main plot finds McClane fighting a gang of cyber terrorists who plan to hack FBI computers. The film was based on the 1997 article "A Farewell to Arms" written for Wired magazine by John Carlin.[3] The film's North American release date was June 27, 2007.[2]

After the project was stalled due to the September 11, 2001 attacks, production eventually began, and the film's title was switched several times. A variety of visual effects were used for action sequences, even though Wiseman and Willis stated that they wanted to limit the amount of CGI in the film. In separate incidents during filming, both Willis and his stunt double were injured. Unlike the prior three films in the series, the US rating was PG-13 rather than R. An unrated version of Live Free or Die Hard containing profanity and violence not included in the theatrical version was made available for the DVD release.

The film received generally positive reviews, earning a 82% approval rating on Rotten Tomatoes and 69/100 from Metacritic. The film had total international box office gross receipts of $383.5

million. For the DVD release, 20th Century Fox pioneered a new kind of DRM, Digital Copy, that tries to weaken the incentives for consumers to learn how to rip discs by offering them a downloadable version with studio-imposed restrictions. The score for the film was released on July 2, 2007.

I rented it long time ago, I also have it on bluray now.

Haunted™ - April 14, 2011, 7:11 pm

(Apr 14, 2011 12:41 PM)fro57 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) i havent watched the other parts of die hard....so will it be fine...watching directly die hard 4 ??? reply
Yeah you can,
you will understand it easily and its fun to see.

Vitani's Mate - April 15, 2011, 5:47 am

For those who haven't seen the movie here is the movie trailer HD.

GoldenEagle1337 - September 2, 2011, 3:28 am

Loved the movie :D
Watched it over and over again !

phantam - September 2, 2011, 4:38 am

Gotta agree DH3 wins hands down, but then again lol i still believe that 1 was my all time favorite

Mt Eden - September 2, 2011, 5:18 am

Sorry but in my opinion the other 3 are better .

But 4.0 was good .

Vitani's Mate - September 2, 2011, 7:53 am

(Sep 2, 2011 05:18 AM)Scream. Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Sorry but in my opinion the other 3 are better .

But 4.0 was good .
Hans Gruber was my fave person. I don't care if he is bad.

diamondeyes6363 - September 2, 2011, 5:23 pm

cant wait for the 5th movie. Dont care how many times mclain is at the wrong place at the wrong time lol

Maxou56800 - September 2, 2011, 8:30 pm

I know the game but i don't know the film. I go to download it now.

Vitani's Mate - September 3, 2011, 12:59 am

(Sep 2, 2011 05:23 PM)diamondeyes6363 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) cant wait for the 5th movie. Dont care how many times mclain is at the wrong place at the wrong time lol
Lol that would be pretty awesome.
I hope there isn't a new actor.