Thread: [\[NOOB TUT\] Getting the IP of every site! \[NOOB FRIENDLY\]](#)

Skid - April 13, 2011, 1:26 pm

Please click Here so i can earn some $$$!

Getting every site's IP Adress

1. Open CMD

go to start, then typ: CMD, then open it

2. Ping!

Typ the following things: ping websitename.com

the "websitename" is the site, if u typ: google.com then press enter, you will get the IP adress of google.com. you can get every IP for every site on this way!

3. What you can do with the IP?!

If u wanna send a dos to a site (do not try google or HF or sites like that.) you really need the IP of the site. Now u know how to find every IP of every site in just like 10 seconds.

If u wanna test a new botnet or something attack this site, this site or this.

I know this TUT is really noob. But the new hackers need to know this.

Some extra video tuts:

I'm sure there'll be someone out there that doesn't know this, and even if one person learns something then it's a usefull tutorial :)

Hackers know this. But newby's on HF, sometimes they don't know anything about hacking. This is stuff they need to know for downing site's, etc.

@Everyone;

Thx :)

It should also be noted you can do this with no-ips like bla.no-ip.org

maxtravaz - April 13, 2011, 3:07 pm

Great tutorial for beginners :),

Good start on the forums here mate...

Still need to make my start :D

Everyone knows this dude xD

Gravity... - April 13, 2011, 3:38 pm

Ha i knew this just by accident when i was messing around in CMD when i was 8yrs old.

Zpirit - April 13, 2011, 3:58 pm

I think even the noobiest of noobs know to do this.

There are always some noobs they don't know this sh*t.

inaudible screaming - April 13, 2011, 4:42 pm

90% of HF hacker's knows about this, but still nice TUT.

Ominex - April 13, 2011, 4:43 pm

I did know about pinging but not that you could ping a website, thanks Skid. :D
