

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Thread-rippers on HackForums

D0T. - June 1, 2011, 4:31 am

I was looking at my tutorial I posted as soon as CS5 came out, about how to get CS5 for free. It has over 550+ replies and over 25,000 views. I googled the thread name, and came across loads of exact copies of my thread, all claiming that they had created the original post.

You can view the thread here (the images are broken now); Here

And here is the google results page for the thread name; Here

Or if you google some of the text from the guide, you get more results still.

I agree with re-posting of good content, but I don't agree that people should then claim that they created the thread.

/Rage over. I am also sure many members will question the point of this thread, I simply want to make people more aware of rippers in the graphics section, even though it is relatively well known there are rippers among us.

Tasemu - June 1, 2011, 5:37 am

Its irritating for sure but theres little to nothing anyone can do to prevent it.