

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Sum Simple Url Tricks

Kraksx - June 12, 2011, 2:06 pm

<http://www.google.com> —> Aviary.com/http://www.google.com

Just adding “Aviary.com” to the very beginning of any URL takes a screenshot of that URL, and then opens it in the Aviary editing interface – one of the best online image editors out there.

<http://images.google.com/images?hl=en&q=monkeys&btn> —>
<http://images.google.com/images?hl=en&q=monkeys&btn> ... gcolor=red

In Google Images, adding the phrase “&imgcolor=whatevercoloryouwant” filters the Google results to images only of that particular color – and does it impressively well.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=nesQa4U8Y1w> —>
<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=nesQa4U8Y1w#t=1m1s>

To jump to a specific moment in a given YouTube video, just add this to the end of the URL: “#t=*m*s” with the * signs meaning minutes and seconds, respectively. The video will then jump to and begin from the exact point you want. In Google Video, add #*m*s to the end for the same result.

http://www.google.com/search?source=ig&as_qdr=d; ... hdance&btn —> http://www.google.com/search?source=ig&as_qdr=d; ... n&as_qdr=d

In a Google search, adding “@as_qdr=d” to the end of the URL will sort your results by date, only showing you the new stuff. Great for reviews or news, and for getting rid of all the static pages that tend to float to the top of Google results.

Taken From

<http://www.digitizd.com/2009/07/11/5-cool-and-simple-url-hacks/>

Boo. - June 12, 2011, 2:13 pm

Add the source you got this from.

<http://www.digitizd.com/2009/07/11/5-cool-and-simple-url-hacks/>

J@bz - June 12, 2011, 2:14 pm

thanks these are some nice tricks :)

Turkey Dunce - June 12, 2011, 3:36 pm

some nice tricks you have th.ere

KinG.QTR - June 12, 2011, 4:19 pm

Thanks So Much Nice Tricks