Thread: Tut: Change Windows Explorer Bar to Nyan

Dr. Phil - July 1, 2011, 10:26 am

Hey all! I found this online not to long ago, and I thought I'd post it here so you guys could try it. It's not really "hacking", but I didn't know where else to post this. This is not my tut I found it here: <http://www.instantelevatormusic.com/nyan-cat-progress-bar>

What it does is that when you do something with Windows Explorer such as copying files you can a standard green loading bar. Well, this program changes that to a Nyan cat and rainbow loading bar. There are pictures in the link and a full tutorial.

So heres what you do!

Fairly-Important Note: Nyan Cat Progress Bar doesn't work properly on Windows XP. If you're still running XP, you might want to consider upgrading to Windows 7.

1. Download the Nyan Cat Progress Bar from here (if you care, the file should have a SHA-1 hash of 31fca694ba7926c210e78d8cc5d0e79d628d4cd1).
2. Extract the ZIP file to a folder.
3. Run NyanCatProgressBar.exe
4. Try copying some files in Windows Explorer. :)

Once again this is NOT my tutorial, I just found this online from the link up above. More information about the program(like how to disable it) can be found from that link.
