What is this guide for?

Spoiler (Click to View) This guide is for some people who's having difficulty searching for a portforward guide for their router.

What's portforward.com?

Spoiler (Click to View) Portforward.com is a website that is all about portforwarding for major router models that are currently used all over the world. So if you're having a problem forwarding your ports I would definitely recommend that you checkout this site.

Yes, there are some requirements in order successfully follow this guide just click the spoiler below to see some of the requirements.

Spoiler (Click to View) Model of your router

Admin Username and password of your router.

Since we are forwarding a port for a RAT I'll require you to completely disable your windows firewall and antivirus/spyware

A little bit of common sense and patience.

Last words

I hope that this would help some members here in HF and sorry if my guide sucks or something. I's almost 10AM here now and I haven't had a sleep, I feel like I'm floating or something>_<? I'm bored that's why I made this guide. If you have some questions about the site feel free to ask by posting here.

^o^Well my guide ends here thanks for reading guys^o^/ this is a nice guide.. it's just shocking and surprising that some people don't even know how to browse a website and find their routers without some "guide".

good job nonetheless.. hoepfully people will learn how to do it

I made this because as I've seen here in RAT section most of their problem is about portforwading so I made this guide to point them out to portforward.com and made a guide for first timers in that site so that they wont get confused. And yeah, I'm BORED that's most likely the whole reason. ?
