

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: [\[TUTORIAL\] How to see who stalks your facebook profile!](#)

Kaspersky - July 24, 2011, 8:48 pm

Even though there's no possible way, I found something that might answer "some people who stalks your facebook profile" or if you stalk their profile.

This may not be true, but from my stalking other peoples profiles and to seeing all the friends on the "friends list at the side" that actually shows friends that "like that person a lot to stalk their profile"...

To make it easier, I'll explain this. Pretend your on your close friends profile, and you know who likes him, you'll probably see her name on his friends list. If not refresh and you might see it.

Also, I was on my own profile, and my friends that NEVER post on my wall, I see their profile pictures and name on the friends thing on my profile. I also have a girl's name on my profile who probably stalks me because iunno how shes likes me, because I was just riding my bike (hanging out) with my friends and we saw her and she randomly hugged me for a long time(About 10-15 seconds) and hugged my friend as well(very short lol), probably to prevent awkwardness.

Another thing I found out is one of my close friends likes this girl and this girl likes him A LOT too (from me watching them while in class) so I go onto her profile and I see my "close friends" name there, as well as a couple of my good friends(boys) who she probably likes. I think she's a slut... (even though they don't even post on her wall, so this cant friends thing on the left side of someones profile does not really explain who post the most of comments on something related to that person)

PLEASE NOTE Though, this might not be accurate because sometime it just puts random friends on the friend list thing on the side. I think it's possible...

You might be able to see who stalks your profile or who's profile you stalk.
I will try to get more information for this, but for the mean time, enjoy!

You might not believe me, but just give it a try at least, it doesn't hurt anyone to try.

EDIT: I provided some pictures to try to prove my 2 theories.
Some people are random people so they are marked as a "X"
I scribbled out the profile picture for obvious reason.

Took out last names for obvious reasons.

Checkmarks mean that they are my friends and we know each other a lot. The "girly names" are the people who like me, well the picture says it all.

The picture

I don't even posted on anything related to the 2 girls who like me... nor did I stalked their profile..

To prove that the "who stalks your profile" and/or the "whos profile do you stalk" theory...

Nawk - July 24, 2011, 8:53 pm

I don't see how refreshing a web page is a hacking tutorial, however, good thoughts on the topic.

DieselWeasel - July 24, 2011, 9:07 pm

Nawkerz is right, this isn't really a tutorial. I don't know how the facebook interface was designed, but maybe your right. I've tried experimenting with your idea. I visited my profile and noticed that the 10 people on my sidebar were 10 of the people I interacted most. I kept resetting the page, and the same people showed up on the sidebar, though in different orders. (Though maybe that has something to do with the fact that those people showed up when I first viewed my profile.) I left my profile and returned to it - same people showed up.

Of course, whatever algorithm (if there is an algorithm) determines who shows up in the sidebar may be choosing those friends of yours for a different reason. Maybe its because you're stalking them!

Quote:Of course, whatever algorithm (if there is an algorithm) determines who shows up in the sidebar may be choosing those friends of yours for a different reason. Maybe its because you're stalking them!

Sorry, I sped read your post and missed that you were already making that point.

3xo - July 24, 2011, 9:48 pm

By the way you cannot see yourself not profile of your friend, so if you want to see if they stalk you, you need to log into an other profile!!

Corn - July 24, 2011, 10:20 pm

Not really sure the exact logic behind this, to an extent.

If you already know they stalk you then what do you gain from knowing they stalk your facebook? What about the people who you don't know and they stalk you. Find that formula out and you are god

Hustler - July 24, 2011, 10:21 pm

Someone is a little conceited.

Kaspersky - July 25, 2011, 8:57 am

(Jul 24, 2011 09:48 PM)3xo Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) By the way you cannot see yourself not profile of your friend, so if you want to see if they stalk you, you need to log into an other profile!!

As I said, some people on the "friends thingy" are just random people because they are people who are like 1 grade ahead of me and I never talked to them, and neither they will very likely not talk/care about me either or even posted anything or on anything related to me...

Pass Candy - July 25, 2011, 9:02 am

I sort of understand this, but yeah you do get random people to.

Skycoder - July 25, 2011, 9:30 am

I couldn't read this very well half of it sounded like a middle school soap opera.

mau5trap - July 25, 2011, 9:31 am

Awesome, love it. Thanks for this!! Great tut

Flayer - July 25, 2011, 10:43 am

I doubt it, On the side is the fittest girl my my High school, so i really doubt it. I have thought of this, but every time you refresh new people come up. It may just be that you have recently interacted with that person.... who knows..

Kaspersky - July 25, 2011, 4:07 pm

(Jul 25, 2011 10:43 AM)Satanius Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I doubt it, On the side is the fittest girl my my High school, so i really doubt it. I have thought of this, but every time you refresh new people come up. It may just be that you have recently interacted with that person.... who knows..

But, I got some people (2 girls) on my friends thing, like 5 times in a row (the same girls) even though I posted nothing that has something related to them..

@skycoder, Actually, I'm going to grade 9 once summer vacation is over, so I "was" in middle school.

If I actually knew you guys in real life, it be a whole lot easier to explain, even though I still use WORDS to explain.

bredsticks - July 26, 2011, 12:32 pm

Pretty much the more you view someone's profile the more likely that they show up on your friends section on your own profile. I have noticed this too. You can tell that people that talk a lot are always on eachothers profiles.

hak123 - July 26, 2011, 2:33 pm

I dont really understand to short

lasttimeitrustyou - August 28, 2011, 10:05 pm

There was a facebook app that was meant for this exact reason.
It shows you your friends who view your profile the most.

I don't use facebook anymore, but you can feel free to look for it.

G??n - August 29, 2011, 12:15 am

(Jul 25, 2011 09:30 AM)Skycoder Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I couldn't read this very well half of it sounded like a middle school soap opera.I thought I'm the only one who couldn't read it.

b0mbh4ck3r - August 29, 2011, 2:46 am

That Little Counfuses me lol :/ ahha

Psn - August 29, 2011, 2:54 am yeah this work i was on my friend on teamviewer i help him with his girl friend might sound wierd but w.e

she on the list same with his cousin who he play xbox with and his friend who he play xbox with and this other girl he stalks that he new since he was borned but some are random

B.O.C - January 6, 2013, 9:33 pm

Actually there is a way to see who has been to your page, in order from most viewed down to I think top 10-15. If your interested in this PM me. Ill make a thread for it!

alexmkd1 - January 7, 2013, 5:06 am

Congratulations, consider yourself a hacker.

You can't see who's stalking you. Facebook has very high security level.

As for now, no, I didn't even read the tutorial, it's not even explained well.

Just Nobody - January 7, 2013, 5:28 am

If you cannot inject script on your profile page, how can someone think that stalking is possible?

Callum. - January 7, 2013, 6:07 am

This is a theory not a tutorial.

Wrong section.

punkHD - January 7, 2013, 10:22 am

I Lol'ed at your hugger story. xD

Spoiler (Click to View)35charalksflkasdlk

Miami - January 7, 2013, 12:10 pm

Thanks for posting this awesome tutorial !