Well

I asked this Question in one of other Threads,But did not got any complete answer

My Question is:

If i close my Paypal Account,then all the Payments I made will be Reversed? or Nothing will happen to them?

I want to close the account ,in order to secure the Payments.Cos The Account being Limited by Paypal and Then Payments "Held" will be more worse . Cos Everyone Knows Paypal Limits and do shits with Unverified Paypal Accounts.

PP account is legit and so do Payments*

This is a very good question.

The payments will be still there. If you have a held payment paypal will not let you close your account.

no...payment's that are comepleted are completed. in which a limitation would occur, it would chargeback all payment's due to it passing the limit of payment's...

your safe to close the account. good thing you are doing it before it get's limited.

If it is legit account as you say it is, then why do you care if it gets limited? You can just get the limitation removed by simply calling them and verifying what needs to be verified.
