Thread: iTheme - infomiho .Net theme infomiho - July 31, 2011, 9:49 am

Hello guys, after seeing Aeonhack's tutorial I wanted to see if I'm up to the task.
Using his base it was quite easy ?

So this is the SS:

iTheme by infomiho

[img]<http://localhostr.com/files/fb8L2R1/capture.png>[/img]

Features:
Theme

Button

TopButton

ProgressBar

In theme - you can put an icon

I think it's quite OK :)

Anyone cares to download? Here: <http://pastebin.com/XnQywDwU>

And also, I edited the Aeonhack's theme, so when mouse is over the button, the mouse cursor would be Hand. (personal preference)

- infomiho ?

Glad to see more people joining the GDI/Theme-Creation scene!

Well done for your first theme. My only suggestion would be to fix the top bar a bit.
(The small vertical line on the left side.)

Other than that, great job and I hope to see more from you.

Oh, I think I'll make something awesome later today, I'm just waiting for inspiration :)

I'll fix that, It's caused by drawing the border after the title bar :D

Mhmm. Again, great seeing more users starting to create themes! I almost feel like I might have a challenge creating themes soon. ;)

Keep up the good work.

Thanks for the comment. It isn't actually as good as I wanted it to be, but we all have our off days. But it is fine. I think I am going to elaborate and expand more on my TeamViewer Theme. So far it is the first theme that I have seen that doesn't require FormBorderStyle set to none, other than @..!..."s Adobe Theme (which got the idea from me anyway ;). Again, keep creating themes and hopefully, one day soon, we can create a collab.

I was expecting to see a theme looking like Mac OSx theme or iTunes, but I still like. Simple, but nice.

Come on guys we have to be honest here, not one of the best themes we have seen :(

Darkserver10 - May 12, 2012, 6:54 am

Looks clean to me. Will you make more controls?
