Thread: Donators Get Away With Scamming?

Surreal - August 9, 2011, 6:59 am

Is this true??

[img]http://screensnapr.com/e/K9zVHr.png[/img]

Do donators get away with scamming on the site somehow? I also heard that if you are limited and you donate, you get unlimited...? True?

I am posting this b/c I heard a guy scammed like 18 people but he won't get banned b/c he donated alot??

If this sort of thing is true, I wish it worked for xbox live...

Sadly, it is. There's so much evidence pointing towards it, any denial is futile.

Not usually. Sometimes there is that special person who somehow gets away with it.

False... As far as I know...

Actually no, its 18 lmao! Not all of them appear in the search.

OldFag - August 9, 2011, 7:45 am

It's really simple. If you know they are scammers do not deal with them. If they try to deal with other members, warn them of whom they are dealing with. You can easily see if someone is a scammer through their reputation. But yes, Omniscient can apply any rules he wants on this forum. Why? Because he is the owner.

No, but you were implying that Omni always bans master donators instantaneously. Boxy wasn't banned until almost a year after scamming, which means that Omni LET him continue threatening members and his own image for that time.

He is doing the same now with the likes of Legitti and Industrialized. Yes, they may get banned eventually, but don't you think 18 potential victims is enough?

He's lucky he has a disclaimer, or the amount of lawsuits filed would be horrific.

Believe me if you guys seen some of the PM's Omni has sent me regarding many different things you would understand.

Here's the guy with 26 scam reports open on him. Welcome, welcome ?

Darko™ - August 9, 2011, 11:13 am

I think most of you are missing the point. This has been stated many times, though I will state it again.

1. HF will not be held responsible for deals made by members.

It means that staff nor Omniscient can do anything no matter the evidence compiled against the scammer. The section is there so that other people will avoid them when doing any type of business, as well as warn them if they do plan to go ahead with the deal.

Only way that they can do something is if the culprit admits to scamming here on HackForums. (Not entirely sure on this, so don't quote me)

It all comes down to how you prefer to do business. If you want to assume that reputation, post count, or user group gives a form of trust, then go ahead.

Are you guys actually too lazy to do some research before you decide to spend money? With Legitti's case, all of those 18+ or however many scams could have been avoided if the victims had done a bit of research. If you fail to properly do research on someone beforehand then honestly, you deserve to get scammed. Sorry to say, but that's the way I feel.

Apparently it is 27, lol. No special treatment there.

If you weren't so ignorant you would see searching my name brings results of posts in the section, And posts not related to deal disputes. You're not convincing anyone that you aren't a scammer. I doubt 27 members would purposely go out of their way to make false scam reports.

You scammed those members.

Now, I don't know if your donations give you any different privileges or not, but you should really just give up trying to defend yourself. It's all out in the open.

This is just half of the first page of search results:

9 topics claiming you're a scammer and one blatantly saying you're not to be trusted.

If I ran a forum, even if I didn't want to get involved for fear of lawsuits, I would damn well ban proven, serial scammers to protect my members.

Chargebacks? Just file a dispute and call a lawsuit on him for monetary fraud.

Industrialized a Red Donator, has made his rank back from scamming.

But he has changed, and I think started refunding people.

Then why does he have so many unresolved scam reports, that he claimed were all fake?

Last time I checked, none had been resolved.

They are being resolved. But you guys don't want to except the fact. Omni just told me he is probably going to ban me. It will probably take that for you guys to be happy.

It would lead to less libelous remarks about corruption and bribery.

Damn bro. I'm not trying to get anyone banned here or anything.

Just tell him you would chargeback on the donation, lol.

Omniscient is in no way Corrupt. Nor would he try to take sides of someone like me, Or any other member for that reason unless he had the proof/evidence he needed to do so.

I can verify this for a fact. I unlike a lot of other people am not afraid to PM Admin's etc. Because if something has happened to you, And it's against the rules you should not be afraid to say so.

In that past 2 days 5 of these threads have been made and they have all been junked...

Also you say you didn't want anyone to get banned but you made a thread about them getting away with things. Then you give him advice that will get him banned.

I was clearly joking when I said that, maybe not clearly enough. Its not like a made it with the intent of getting people banned bro. I wasn't like:

Fuck this shit, Im going to make a thread and try get master donators off this site.

No.

Probably referring to me, But if not then this post really contradicts your entire thread.

Just look at Atthackers :/

Jam2556 - August 9, 2011, 12:32 pm

This has been brought up time and time again, just drop it now, there's so many threads in the Deal Disputes section anyways.

NaDe - August 9, 2011, 12:52 pm

Omni has stated in help documents that staff will only get involved in transactions on occasions. So just because they have donated and haven't got banned for it doesn't mean that their invincible. This is the reason for the deal disputes sub forum. If members did more research before jumping into a transaction because the member is an ub3r with a few hundred rep then most likely they wouldn't have been scammed.

Exactly. HF is not responsible for any deals you do here.

Members post scam reports to let others know that someone is a scammer.

He just didn't pay for the group and he had told Omni to disband it. Where are you getting your info from?

This is very true. There's proof all over the forums, but they won't take actions even if the situation is as bad as this.
