Ok, so what you do is you just get 1 ant from outside and have it dead or alive in your arm or somewhere where it won't be seen as you walk in.

Order let's say two crunchy tacos.

Eat the first taco and the second one take a bite and then put in the ant where it's visible but not too close to the bite mark.

You go to the person to complain about the ant and don't ask for a discount or anything just say there was an ant.

They should give you a free pick of whatever food is on the menu, if not. Say you'll report them to the Fast food association whatever and they'll break ?

i doubt that will work, but your much better off with what i've done many times go to a fancy restaurant, and just complain like an old man about how you got taste like complete shit

then they give you it for free
