Thread: Important Techsperts Update

The Rated R Superstar - September 5, 2011, 3:04 pm

As it stands, we currently have 50 members in TS. I have deliberately kept it small for a reason. That reason being that my group is meant to be as HQ as possible. But recently I've noticed a trend, a lot of HQ members are getting denied because they have warnings/limitations/bans at the time the applications are accepted/denied.

Now as some of you may know, the time between when I close the thread and when the applications are actually done is around 3 weeks. I am aware that a lot can happen in that amount of time and for some it may be hard to keep a clean record for that long. That is why I am offering this solution.

From now on, if you are denied based on the fact that you had a warning/ban/limitation at the time of the applications being processed, you may PM me and ask to pay me a flat $15 AUD fee for me to look past your mistake.

Just to be clear, yes this does serve to make me some extra money. But it also serves as a way for you to get in after making a mistake. Now don't get me wrong, once in TS you will still need to follow the rules and do what we do. So don't think that paying to get in makes you exempt. I don't tolerate people just in my group for the userbar.

Other than the warnings/bans/limitations, you will still need to meet the criteria. Like I said at the start, you must have already been denied for having a warning/ban/limitation. However, if you would like to apply while having a warning you may pay for that also. However, since that didn't happen while you were waiting to be accepted, it will cost $20 AUD. Before payment, I would need to verify that you actually meet the criteria in which to be accepted. If you meet the criteria and I accept you, you will still need to follow the rules and do what is asked of you.

Whether or not people choose to take this offer is completely up to them. I am merely offering another way to gain access to Techsperts.

Yessir.

I like this new idea.

Glad you put it into the statement now.

M?ngo - September 5, 2011, 3:06 pm

So even my 10% warning would make me have to pay you $15?

Wolves - September 5, 2011, 3:06 pm

Quite an interesting idea, don't see anything wrong with it per say.
Perhaps some other leaders may start doing this as well.

Eruditus - September 5, 2011, 3:07 pm

As I was accepted the other day and then denied due to my warning level would I be eligible for this?

I'm sure I could gather some money within the next few days as I was very enthusiastic about getting into TS and was sad to hear about being denied due to my warning level.

You don't have to pay. It's more for impatient people. The alternative is to wait until your warning expires, re-apply and try not to get a warning in the time it takes for applications to be processed.

Bulls - September 5, 2011, 3:08 pm

Good idea TRRS :)

Hopefully this will make you some extra money along the way

Ok, I understand, that seems very agreeable.

Yes, you're the specific example I'm talking about. You had 0% at the time of application and when the applications were processed you had a warning level.

I guess I shall be PMing you about this offer then within the next two days.

I had accepted you due to your HQ tutorials but hence your warning, you were denied.

Sorry about that.

Nice Idea TRRS bro. Glad it would help the group for raising funds for projects etc..

(Offtopic: Hey Trrs bro, do you remember me? C: It's me who stopped the leak etc.. check my rep xD)

▣ Nick™ ▣ - September 5, 2011, 3:21 pm

A very strategic way to make some money if I say so myself ?

Great Idea TRRS :)

Yes, but at the same time, it is mainly to gain more members.

Members that were accepted, but are now given a second chance to get in the group with the warning/limitation.

D3xus - September 5, 2011, 5:39 pm

Does this only apply to people with warning levels, or can any denied member also pay $15 AUD to join?

Viral Dragon - September 5, 2011, 6:01 pm

TRRS,

Am I the only one who thinks that this reminds me of some corrupt official or something? Lol.
Either way, it's nice way to make profit.

Ui Hirasawa - September 5, 2011, 6:19 pm

So basically:

Pay me, but I can still deny you.

>chargeback

?rew - September 5, 2011, 6:28 pm

idk about this due to if they become inactive a few weeks down the roads and get kicked out, may start something.

Nah, just don't be inactive. ?

If your inactive, then Rated R will speak with you when you come back.

The $15 payment is only for those denied based on the fact they had a warning LVL. If you don't meet any of the other requirements you'll need to PM me and we'll work out a price based on your threads.

Verilog - September 8, 2011, 11:41 pm

That's a great idea TRRS, i really like the way you manage and handle things around.
But i hope they follow the ethics of Techsperts.

Techie??? - September 9, 2011, 6:08 am

I want to be in Techsperts but I'm not a L33T or UB3R now. So I'm not going to be in.

michaelmhmhmh - September 9, 2011, 11:04 am

Creative Idea, I think its a pretty good deal.

I don't like this TRRS. Reason being is the part regarding threads. Personally if they got denied for any other reason besides the one specified, they shouldn't be allowed in. It basically gives leniency to enter the group as LQ member.

I'm not oblivious, I review people that don't meet the requirements and normally they get a higher price. If they haven't written a single tutorial they never get in.

I made one tutorial since my last application. I have got no pm. Now, what? I had 0% warning etc. Did i get accepted or denied?

This thread isn't for those questions.

Krueger - September 10, 2011, 7:55 am

I like this idea :P Sometimes isn't because you got warnings or shits that your not an HQ members ... Hope those who get warn's will learn with this extra cost :P Never been warned in the last past years ... and i won't lol
