So I just watched the first episode of Ben-To. As you might expect, it's pretty fucking random. The characters and animation are pretty nice though with nice fighting scenes and decent plot to say the least.

Opinions?

I was looking at the description of that anime a couple of days ago, I decided not to watch it because I can't decide to do anything, let alone which anime I should watch right now.

I know how you feel, I was like that two weeks ago. I then started to get back into anime with Shana and various other anime (around 5 I think) as well. Just go through an episode randomly and you might find something you like.

Thought this was going to be a Ben-10 thread, was 'bout to rage on you shana.

The anime looks fairly interesting, I'm watching it, but not expecting to much.

It's far too random for my taste. Is the whole thing going to be about going back to that store? I'm just a little confused.

They explained it further in the 1-2 episode. Basically bentos are like gold and people brawl over them.

didn't see the 2nd episode yet. :L

It doesn't seem like a plot that can make the anime last long unless they add some additional stuff to it though.

Looks like a regular 12 episode anime, a pretty good time waster for when you're waiting for the good ones like [cough]Shakugan no Shana[/cough].
