Thread: [Semi-tethered jailbreak released \[UPDATED\]](#)

awestom - October 22, 2011, 10:22 pm

A semi-tethered jailbreak has been released, this means you can restart your iDevice on the "road", without the need for a computer.

There are some limitations though, these include;

- Can't use Safari

- Can't use Mail app

- Can't use jailbreak tweaks, apps, or cydia

While in the semitether booted state, you should not add a jailbreak ios5 notification such as sbsettings to notifications during this state or your device will be stuck in a respring loop until you get home to "boot tethered".

While in this state you can;

- Use Phone app

- Use Messages app

- Can use any other stock app (except the ones stated above)

- Can use app store web browsers

Instructions on how to do this are as follows;

Add this repo;

Code <http://thebigboss.org/semitether>

Open that repo, and install semi-tethered;

Reboot device;

Now you are in semi-tethered mode;

Now re-jailbreak with your computer.

Also, here is a video tutorial;

Thank you for the news,

i'll wait for the final untethered release ;)

iRun - October 23, 2011, 6:25 am

Thanks I was going to write a TUT last night, but I needed to go to bed! :D

This is a sign that a untethered is so close to being released people can smell it. Thanks formula share :)

iRun - October 23, 2011, 9:03 am

Should I do the semi-tethered or just wait for an untethered?

Grin - October 23, 2011, 9:11 am

Wait for the untethered.

I saw this last night I was going to make a thread and then I saw yours...FTW.

And btw your iMessage, why aren't you responding?

Grin - October 23, 2011, 10:31 am

I'm talking about awestome. You respond I know.

iRun - October 23, 2011, 11:20 am

I'm loving all the tweaks for notification center! :D

awestom - October 23, 2011, 10:45 pm

Thanks for all the feedback guys, and luckily I beat you ;D

Awesome!

But I don't like that I can't use Safari anymore!

You can use skyfire in the app store. It's pretty good.

Skyfire is LEGIT! Best browsing app IMO

but i'm not buying that, and it won't work once the phone turns back on, so it's no use to me if i try this semi tethered lol.

I hope maybe by this weekend they can release a untethered :D

Okay, because I've got the jailbreakme.com jailbreak for 4.3.2, and it eats battery life. Can't wait to test out 5.0 :D
