Internet Protocol Tracer (Re-Done)

Since I've been getting a lot of Pm's about the old Internet Protocol tracer, I decided that I would re-make the old one. The old one unfortunately no longer works, because the API, or website I was using is no longer free. I still have about a day or so, until I will be finished, I have to add some more features, again.

What's Different?

- *Includes more information than before
- *Now uses almost 100% Web Clients
- *Proper flags (Other one was Glitched)
- *History Search

Updates:

-None

I will be releasing this soon, to the public. This is a really simple application that is good in time of needing to look up IP's, etc. It will be again message me for the program, because I don't want random kids getting it.

Suggestions?

Please suggest anything that I should add / remove, to make the application better. Any thing that could be edited as well I would love to hear feedback.

Awesome! Great work man, The GUI looks good aswell.

Will it be Freeware or Open Source?

The Project will be Open source, just like the last one.

Last one had a lot of pointless code in it, this one is a bit smaller, and less flawed.
