Thread: [\[REVIEW\] User driven mini-reviews \[READ/WRITE A REVIEW\]](#)

Nathan Moriarty - December 12, 2011, 9:34 am

Hello,

Right now I'm in the marked for a new RAT, as I know many of you are too - and many to come. Therefore, I am creating this thread to help myself, as well as the rest of the community.

So the basic idea of this thread is that whoever that wants, writes a mini-review of the RAT they use.

To keep everything nice and clear, there are a few "rules" you have to keep in mind while writing the mini-review: Follow the template (bottom of the page)

You can only write about the latest version of the RAT

It need to be at most 1 week sins the last time you used the RAT

No fancy text fonts or colors

Keep a formal tone and write as clearly as possible*

* = Not everyone here understands English that well, but it doesn't mean you can't use irony and stuff like that ;)

Template (to use the template just copy/paste)

Thread/site: Link to the thread or site where the RAT can be found

Ease of use [rating (1 to 10)] short comment (interface/simplicity/etc)

Features [rating (1 to 10)] short comment (quantity/quality/etc)

Support [rating (1 to 10)] short comment (friendly/avalibility/etc)

Final rating [rating (1 to 10)]

Side note (optional)

write here what doesn't fit in any of the other sections

Example (note: this RAT does not exist)

Spoiler \(Click to View\)Quote:Name: Perfect RAT

Version: 5.5

Thread/site: <https://hackforums.net/thread#1234567>

Ease of use [9/10]

After you log in, you are presented with a light and well organized interface, which I think is near to perfect.

The interface is also very fast and responds the way you would expect.

Features [8/10]

This RAT includes all the "basic" features of a RAT (screen-capture, file viewer, etc).

However the best part is that everything is working as they should.

No exclusive or amazing feature tho.

Support [10/10]

They provide 24/7 text based support. There are always someone to help, but I haven't used this as much since everything is working in the first place :)

Final rating [9/10]

Thanks and good luck ?
