In what aspect of graphics do you specialise? : I can do almost anything, except for the coding aspect of webdesign. I really love doing large designs, for things like posters, t-shirts, album covers, banners, etc. I especially enjoy working on projects with people who produce music. ^ _ ^

Your time zone : Eastern Standard Time (EST), Ohio

Any further information : I have a five day weekend coming up, which I intend on spending the majority dedicated to some really neat graphics stuff (particularly learning to use C4D). Also, I really really love green, and thus would love to design some 'Kiwi' related things.

Also, this group is just beginning to bloom into a formidable force in the Graphics section. Just you guys wait. ;)

The 2 leaders, have worked with Unreputed.

We left, rememeber?

Or are you new here?

Mine is the same as Sai's but 3 Hours ahead.

I left because of the immaturity the group had and unreputed bad leadership.

Hope he improves now though.

Flying Dutchman - January 13, 2012, 3:15 pm

Both 'New Age Designs' and 'Kiwi Graphics' are groups filled with art enthusiasts. The members in Kiwi have no intention in having a competition or struggle with NA, both groups have a similar aim 'to help the weak and guide the strong'. We are unofficial and this drama is embarrassing for both groups.

I'm politely asking to refrain from having arguments in this thread - as it's meant for applications. Any unresolved matters can be discussed by sending a PM to one of the leaders.

Every Kiwi member that continues this argument in this thread will be spoken to and possibly kicked.

I would like to thank some members for leaving feedback on this group and wish them a fortunate existence. Any off-topic posts will be reported as such from now on.

Maybe we can have a group-graphics battle one time.

Well, since you've left there's been a total re-roster. A lot of people were kicked out and now Kiwi is looking for good designers with a good attitude. It's been a very positive change, and there's more to come.

JDBar - January 14, 2012, 11:49 am

Just announcing that for all of my future free designs and SOTW entries, I will be uploading the PSD file for them under Kiwi Graphics.

Ohya - January 14, 2012, 1:49 pm

God, everyone's getting their panties in a bunch over a group on a forum?

Open your fucking eyes already.

Ofcourse Kiwi is ripping, but so is fucking new age designs.

Do you guys honestly think that you were the first to ever create a group to help people who are new to graphic designing?

Fuck no.

I could start a new graphic designing team on Hack Forums, just for my friends and I any day.

That'd be no one's fucking business. Yes, I'd create such a team, despite the fact that there are already twenty-seven other similar groups on HF, but fucking cares?

Hack Forums has a graphic section for all the people who can't be arsed to learn about hacking, and prefer to spend their time while outing their creativity.

Get that?

We're all art enthusiasts. Our goal is to get better and develop our own unique way of making tags.

Design to express, not to fucking impress.

Having -na. in front of your name doesn't mean that you're a better designer than someone with +kiwi. in front of their name.

It just means that you're in a different group of art lovers, that you enjoy being around with.

So, why don't you guys just shake hands for once, with whatever group that will be made in the future, because I'm sure there will be plenty more similar groups.

Love your fellow art designers. We're all so very similar, yet unique in our own ways.

Now I'll just leave this thread, instead of applying (what I wanted to do at first).

Perhaps my rant doesn't make sense at all. I couldn't care less.

I just needed to vent this once, and I must say that it felt good.

Have a nice day, everyone.

Signature making and photo manipulation. Haven't really been doing very much Photo Manip lately tho.

Your time zone :

What makes you stand out from the rest? :

I can learn new things really fast and I always read and use the feedback I get on my work to improve it. I also listen to my customers when I am doing a signature/banner or something else and modify it so that when they get it they are 110% satisfied with it. I do also believe that a true artist does not require payment for his work, instead the artist should only get paid if the customer really feels like paying the artist for his or her efforts. And of course I am not a little immature troll that just want to join a design group or such just to advertise him or herself.

Any further information :

It would be a great honor if I was accepted into Kiwi, as this would hopefully affect my GFX career greatly. And as I am also going to study Game Design after the summer break, getting some more knowledge about design and different medium programs would give me a great advantage.

In what aspect of graphics do you specialise? : I'm quite familiar with signatures but I'm trying to make the transition into large pieces and have plans to do a bit of web design.

Your time zone : GMT

What makes you stand out from the rest? : Not entirely sure about this. Everybody is similar in some respect, but I suppose what makes me somewhat different is my constant experimenting with new techniques and not sticking to a certain style for more than a few pieces. I like to mix things up and learn from what works and what doesn't. I suppose the only other thing that really separates me is how I view my own work. I am my own biggest critic and will be among the first to point out any flaws in my work. When I see a flaw in a finished I take note of it, I don't fix it as it's finished and I have learned (unless I still have the source file open, then I'll do something to it or if the piece has been made at the request of somebody else. I don't like giving out lower standard work when I know it can be better.)
