Thread: [\[NOOB\]\[TUT\]change your PAYPAL etc \$\$\$ amount\[NOOB\]\[TUT\]](#)

This is simple and easy, You can change your money amount, for example, I'll login my Paypal, this will simply work for any online money accounts!~

1) To make this simple for noobs, Copy the following:

Code javascript:document.body.contentEditable='true'; document.designMode='on'; void 0

2) Now what you're going to do is after you copy that, go to your paypal account overview etc;

3) Now PASTE the code into the URL browser

Okay first off let me explain a few things, this is a Javascript edit, which means no it wont permanently change the settings, or amount. It is only made to fake your money amount.

Errors: If you are using Google Chrome and possibly another browser. When you paste the code into the URL bar, javascript will be left out. Just simply make a space in the front and add in Code javascript:

4) Now you can simply change anything on the page! But do it smoothly, cause you can wreck a few things and could have to start over.

Now that I have complete control of the page, I'm going to fake that I own the amount of money to anyone I want to "deal with"

Note: I will never, ever, use this in a deal dispute, so I must not be known as a "scammer" etc, this is fully for educational purposes, and that I will never, scam.

Now I have edited the money amount to anything I want.

Btw: If your browser shows the red squiggly line, just right click on the word and "add to dictionary" to avoid it.

Edit: You can use this for any website, so you can play around with google, change your emails, etc etc

This is a nice trick, but not that useful. Anyways, nice guide tho!

It's not like it gives you real money.

Not very useful and most people know how to do it

Right click, Inspect element and edit as HTML. Done and is more convincing.

This is only to trick someone, not to show someone upclose, just you know, pretend you have this amount and screenshot, send to friend etc. ~

This method is only good for people that are trying to scam others to think they are rich.

Or... You can use firebug. It's easier and doesn't fuck up the whole page if you make a mistake :)
