

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: How can I download torrents safely?

ub4r - February 14, 2012, 12:14 am

I've heard about all this ACTA stuff, and I ALWAYS used to download movies and TV shows. being that btjunkie.org shut down, and that people are saying they are getting warning messages from their internet provider, do I have to worry or do I have to hide my IP etc, and how can I do that? :) thank you.

Apocryphon - February 14, 2012, 3:25 am

Theres no problems for now,so you can normally download torrents i don't think so that this shits will pass anyway.

???? - February 14, 2012, 4:35 am

You are fine download as you usually would, If you really want to be safe download through a VPN. You can download free VPN's but I recommend buying one from this forum.

xtraesp - February 14, 2012, 6:26 am

I go behind a vpn and peerblock...

All they see is the IP so vpn is fine and you are safe.

ub4r - February 14, 2012, 11:41 am

Alright thanks guys ;P Don't have to worry for now

Verilog - February 14, 2012, 1:20 pm

Use a VPN mate and always download torrents from trusty members.

HoIGORE - February 14, 2012, 2:11 pm

Dont use free VPNs

they are logging for sure so it would be useless to use it

you should get one from here in the forum

personally im using nVpn and im happy with it

Raijin - February 14, 2012, 2:13 pm

Buy a cheap VPS with ~20GB space and install torrentflux. You can torrent to your server then get a direct download link from it.

stdape2011 - February 14, 2012, 2:56 pm

VPN is fine if you get one that does not log.

-Liam - February 14, 2012, 3:13 pm

I'm unsure if this is still safe but I feel a lot more secure using this method.

I've bought a VPS hosted within the Netherlands, an offshore country, I'm currently using it as a Seed-box to download .torrent files and then I can use it to directly download from. As well as boosting my Internet speeds by an incredible amount, my personal IP isn't shown when I'm downloading the torrents. I'm pretty sure the copyright rules, if they have any at all, are a lot different within the Netherlands too.

xtraesp - February 14, 2012, 4:17 pm

I been using hotspot shield with utorrent for over a year now and I am fine.

probablyreadit - February 14, 2012, 6:15 pm

OP, that's like asking, "how can I rob a bank safely"...there's always some risk involved. All else fail use proxies and a sandboxie browser when downloading.

Anonymous13 - February 15, 2012, 3:30 pm

Just download proXPN and you internet company will never find out if you've been on the pirate bay :)

MasDie - February 16, 2012, 7:47 am use a no-logging vpn service. they arent to expensive.

?Ñâzg?! - February 16, 2012, 2:10 pm

Here read this

<http://www.raymond.cc/blog/protecting-yourself-when-downloading-using-bittorrent/>

This teaches you about Anti-P2P organization IPs.

I also suggest getting a VPN or using a proxy

Cr.s - February 19, 2012, 9:05 am

I got a few warnings using btjunkie.org as well but I believe that's one of the reasons they shut their site down because they stated they were tired of fighting for our rights... but I started using iptorrent and I had no more warnings but probably b/c its by invite only...

igenious99 - February 19, 2012, 12:44 pm

Downloading torrents from top sites are safe as far as i know ...

Please check it before downloading that it is verified or not ..

Eric21 - March 26, 2012, 9:10 pm

You can download safely if you have a good AV installed in your pc, So that it can tell you if tor has any problem with.

kenedy123 - March 26, 2012, 9:15 pm

Always download from a known torrent site, such as btjunkie, isohunt, or mininova.

Only use clients that allow you to choose specific files to download, and not automatically download everything contained in the torrent.

xtraesp - March 26, 2012, 9:32 pm

(Mar 26, 2012 09:15 PM)kenedy123 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Always download from a known torrent site, such as btjunkie, isohunt, or mininova.

Only use clients that allow you to choose specific files to download, and not automatically download everything contained in the torrent.

Btjunkie closed its doors.

Mininova went legal torrents only.

isohunt doesn't like to load for me.

kat.ph is nice.

I no longer use vpn with utorrent I scan proxies and use them.

hackerman235 - March 27, 2012, 12:33 pm

i would recommend download from this site. <http://kat.ph/>