

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Didnt use a VPN nor Proxie am i screwed?

Nitrosolid14 - February 23, 2012, 11:06 pm

Hello i tried getting into a very small website. It had Cpanel i tried using an sql injection that i got here on the forum cpanel said account locked due to fore attack. When i went on the admin page with another ip it said to log in so does that mean the account isnt locked. Even so will the site owners do anything or will it just be unlocked when they try to login?

Hivem1nd - February 23, 2012, 11:43 pm

Most admin pages lock down after a certain amount of incorrect logins and stay locked down for a set period of time (I don't know how long that would be but it can't be TOO long). The IP would be saved somewhere on the server that you tried to login, but that doesn't mean that anybody's gonna notice or care. So you're probably fine, but I'd definitely use a proxy of some sort from now on.

bckslsh - February 24, 2012, 12:07 am

Not much will happen. Best case scenario is you will be fed to the fed's dogs.

nobutrly, lrn2vpn/proxy chain.

timbojones0123 - February 24, 2012, 1:29 am

HAHA ^^^ But no i don't think if it is quite small and no real damage was done. They will probably just have a laugh then improve there security! :D

langkampo - February 24, 2012, 1:59 am

^They will not laugh xd. Most admins which even have there sites unsecured, are going crazy if they see somebody logged XD

But nah man ur fine, just don't forget it next time. Nothing will happen.

Sw1x - February 24, 2012, 3:58 am

Maybe something will happen, don't think it will but if it doesn't happen anything in like 2 moths, stop worrying.

thecompany - February 24, 2012, 10:12 am

You a smaller timer the police don't have time to look for you. What you did is the equivalent of stealing bubble gum from a local store. You're just a small fish in a big pond. No need to worry about this.

games-lol-owned - February 24, 2012, 12:58 pm

i would not worry dude you have not really do out wrong by trying to log in hahah and chances are no one will ever care or see

Mx. - February 24, 2012, 1:10 pm

You have thrown: 5 , please take 5 steps forward: 1 ehh 2 eehh 3 eeoh 4 eeohm 5, GO DIRECTLY TO JAIL.

DING DING DING.

BlackGhost - February 24, 2012, 1:16 pm

I wouldn't worry so much, worst case scenerio, you'd have to pay a fine because you broke in to there website.

ah well thats the risk if you don't use proxy's

Ichi - February 24, 2012, 1:48 pm

Unless you cost them money, or you're fucking with some .govs, don't worry too much about it. Most webmasters don't even know how their site was compromised or how to fix it. And if they find out how did it, they don't know what to do with the IP.

However, there's still a small chance something could happen.