Why is it stupid when there are alot of new Hackers out there that could use this kinda information. This is for helping.

Do you intentionally spell "click" like that, because its really annoying.

"This is for helping."

Listen OP, good for you for putting in all the time and effort to make this post, I am sure a lot of new "hackers" will appreciate it. I think all we are trying to say here is that eventually, when you look back on this thread in a few months once you have gained more knowledge about VPNs, you will laugh. However, you will not laugh as hard as I am right now because never have I, or will I ever again, see someone put so much effort into a proXPN thread. It is by far the worst public VPN other than hidemyass. They keep logs, it is not offshore, only has one location, and there have been people that have been turned in by this vpn before (even premium). Good luck in the future! Keep posting HQ, just get better topics ;)

My point in a far less pithy fashion.

Almost every VPN that says it doesn't keep logs is lying.

This is VERY true; especially domestic ones here in the states.

Grand Pootis - April 11, 2012, 7:22 pm

Almost every country has data retention laws.

Who is going to give out a service for less than $10/month and then NOT cover their ass if someone does something horrifically heinous on their service?

Just wanted something to post about thx anyway xD <3

Well, can't set aside the fact that the OP did put a lot of time into this tutorial, and it's very descriptive. So, for those of you who are dogging on him because he did a tutorial based on a VPN that keeps logs, you have to give him credit for the time and effort he put into the tutorial. This would be very helpful to people who are just starting out; novices.

OP, not offense, but you're teaching new members how to get dumb.

First thing is even if you're under a VPN, you're not secured. If they don't keep logs, their ISP does.

Second, I like the pictures, but what's the use of it if they can just follow the "Register - Download - Next - Next - Finish" method, which is very easy if you use your brains. New members are not retards (at least not all of them).

Lastly, I know you want to help, and I know you made efforts for this tutorial, but next time, if you're going to put up a tutorial, pick a topic which isn't as "noobish" as this for beginners. You're just teaching them how to be a skid and make them believe VPNs make them secured.

Nice share though.
