phantasmagorical - April 13, 2012, 2:12 pm

Free and Paid Keyloggers

Spoiler \(Click to View\) Keystroke logging (often called keylogging) is the action of tracking (or logging) the keys struck on a keyboard, typically in a covert manner so that the person using the keyboard is unaware that their actions are being monitored. There are numerous keylogging methods, ranging from hardware and software-based approaches to electromagnetic and acoustic analysis. From: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Keystroke_logging

Remote Administration Tools

Spoiler (Click to View) A remote access tool (a RAT) is a piece of software that allows a remote "operator" to control a system as if he has physical access to that system. While desktop sharing and remote administration have many legal uses, "RAT" software is usually associated with criminal or malicious activity. Malicious RAT software is typically installed without the victims knowledge, often as payload of a Trojan horse, and will try to hide its operation from the victim and from security software.

The operator controls the RAT through a network connection. Such tools provide an operator the following capabilities:[1]

- Screen/camera capture or image control[2]
- File management (download/upload/execute/etc.)[3]
- Shell control (from command prompt)[4]
- Computer control (power off/on/log off if remote feature is supported)
- Registry management (query/add/delete/modify)[5]
- Other software product-specific functions

Its primary function is for one computer operator to gain access to remote PCs. One computer will run the "client" software application, while the other computer(s) operate as the "host(s)". From: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Remote_administration_software

Now, I haven't seen many actual RAT's on HF. I'll list the most commonly known RATS and Help desks/Tutorials.

You should separate the free from the paid ones and separate those two from the free with option of payment.
