These are the only people who can either accept or decline you from the group.

How do I get in?

The group is still invite only. But we rarely invite people in. (1 a month at most)

What are we doing about all the other people that want to join? Well, we will let you in instantly for a fee of $15. (limited time)

No this is not pocketed, it is used to pay for the free-hosting we give to all members.

Also, it helps giveaways with better quality items.

PM me if you would like to pay the fee. It is a one-time fee.

No refunds will be given. NO matter the cause.

*Applying for this group means you automatically agree to rules.

Remember joining a group is strictly a privilege, leaders are not obligated to accept new members.

Elegant - April 14, 2012, 8:14 pm

Vouch! This is a very wonderful group to get into, I've loving every moment from it.

Zanelot - April 14, 2012, 8:16 pm

Seems like a pretty nice group. It's a shame that I have 40% warning level.

Retribute - April 14, 2012, 8:22 pm

This group always has looked pretty good, but sadly I don't have the money to pay to get in.

1700block - April 14, 2012, 8:22 pm

Was a good group back in the day, heard it is pretty good. Good luck to all that get in.

TheVortex - April 14, 2012, 8:23 pm

This is definitely a great group to be in. I can't wait to see some new people in the group.

Bridge - April 14, 2012, 8:26 pm

I will work on that cash to get accepted, I have wanted to join for awhile.

prodigyhf - April 14, 2012, 8:26 pm

I would love to be in this group, but I'm not gonna pay for groups anymore and I will never be invited. But meh.

Positive - April 14, 2012, 8:28 pm

I honestly wish I didn't charge anymore, but I have to.

We now have hosting for the group, that you may use as your portfolio while you stay.

Reptar - April 14, 2012, 9:27 pm

You didn't capitalize the 'i' in your second sentence.

I have it set to one member a month, so the group doesn't have 323,907 members.

Reptar - April 14, 2012, 9:34 pm

I honestly thought groups on this forum were the only good thing left, but now i think they're the worse

Groups charging like $15-25 to join is really crazy. I remember when members only had to do an application and perhaps donate if they wanted to be very generous. Now its pay to get in or you're never getting in. I really regret never getting able to make my group because i would have made it nothing like the crap that's going on now ?

If you had a group, I am sure you would charge to get in.

Why? Because you would want to make the money back that you spent.

A few weeks ago, we had to pay off this group. Only the amount to keep it on the forum though.

Now we have services in the group, that the money is going towards.

I agree with this. I could easily pay to get into groups but its as if it would just defeat the purpose in my mind.

At the same time I understand charging to make back the $2,000 that you initially put into it.

You don't understand the amount of money it is to create a group. Believe me everyone considers charging.

Suhinder - April 14, 2012, 9:40 pm

Always been fond of this group along with its quality.
Too bad it's nearly a totalitarian invite only group aside from the fact that of course there is an obligatory fee to join otherwise. I like the doctrines and idea of this crew though. I wish the leaders and members good luck.

Now the cost of a group has gone up.
$4,000 or more to get an official group on this forum.
Therefore, groups are going to be rare.

No actually, the money wasn't the issue. I expected nothing back from the HF members here. I have made soo many giveaways and i have NEVER asked to get anything in return

I was only going to charge $10 for like $10 people to join to make back $100 to make the group official. After that, there would have been nothing i wanted but to make everyone happy here

Nice to see you guys recruiting.

I may pay $15 soon seeing how I'm close to cashing out big bucks on foolish.

Villiska - April 15, 2012, 1:59 am

I've seen help desks throughout various sections of the forums such as the Windows section and I must say you are a very helpful group. Perhaps sometime in the future, when I begin working again I'll upgrade my account and also begin getting into your community and trying to benefit this group. A lot of my respect goes to you all and I wish you the best of luck with this. Keep helping everyone, that $4,000 is definitely not going to waste.

Have a good night everyone. :)

Agent Shark - April 15, 2012, 2:19 pm

Keep in mind that $15.00 fee is so small compared to what your getting. I mean along with everything else your paying $15.00 for hosting. It's a one time fee compared to others. What are you waiting for, come on in!

JeromeMarshall - April 16, 2012, 1:08 am

Heh. Someone mentioned to me when I was looking for some decent cheap hosting, that If I joined you guys I would get it. Seems fair I'll probably do it next week week when I need the hosting. To the people complaining about the fee, really? I probably have $15 in change somewhere in my couch for god sakes.

Anyways hopefully I can contribute on a higher level. I work as an information security consultant in real life, and have almost a decade in the industry as well as a compsci degree with multiple certs. Be speaking to you soon pal!

Wormag - April 16, 2012, 1:18 am

I'd gladly pay the fee but I currently have no money. Great group though.

Hexicidal - April 16, 2012, 5:37 pm

KegzHD - April 16, 2012, 5:56 pm

I would like to join but unfortunately I don't have the money for it. I believe I have all the requirements, but as it's invite-only or fee, good luck to everyone who joins.

It's pay to enter, they said that they accepted around 1 person a month, so the chances to get in are very hard. If you really wanted to get in I suggest paying a small $15.

Heat - April 19, 2012, 8:14 am

Love this group. Great group to be in

Saurfang - April 19, 2012, 10:29 am

I'm just going to throw some information about me on the off-chance I might get invited.

When it comes to computers I am an expert. It's all I do, it's my whole freakin' life. I remember when I was nine my dad's friend's desktop printer wasn't compatible with his brand-new Windows Vista. He had one of his other friends, a professional computer hardware engineer, look at it, and he said it just wouldn't work. When they went out to get a beer I hopped on the computer, did a little research, and ended Micky-mousing a really old driver and modified it to fit with Vista and pretend it was the driver for his printer. They come back, beers in their hands, and I'm printing out a test page. You can imagine the look on the hardware engineer's face.

That was the start of my computer love. Now if we fast forward to modern times you see me, at a trade school thirty-minutes from my town's public school, taking classes for Computer Programming, Design and Visual Communications, and Computer Software Diagnoses. I want to get a job as a Computer Software Engineer as a profession and a Computer Repair Specialist as a side job or intertwined with my profession.

I have taken apart EVERY (and I mean EVERY) computer I have ever owned, upgraded them, and put them back together. Over the years this has left me to accumulate a lot of spare parts (Specifically DDR and DDR2 RAM, with a few other goodies mixed in. If I get in, maybe I could donate these for one of your give a ways?)

As for coding, I can code Visual Basic, and I am furthering my knowledge in Python. I hope to have mastered C++ before the year comes to a end. And that my friends, pretty much sums up my little memoir on myself. I am still clinging to that small hope I might have a shot of being invited.

Positive - April 19, 2012, 7:50 pm

We have a lot of brand new members.

Everyone must pay to get in.

Pay before the price raises.

And the reason we have a fee, is to pay off hosting etc.

We have hosting for a reason. Each member gets the free web-hosting upon entrance.

When they receive it, that it where their projects and website is hosted.

So when we do our classes, what they learn and what they will have for homework will be on the site.

We can grade them easier like this.

Its an invite only group.

I would definitely join the Techsperts if someone can send me an invite.

Looking to get into a group from a long time.

Unfortunately most groups are paid-to-get-in or have closed recruiting.

So I'd love to get an invite.

We will only have this again for a set amount of time.

The entrance fee is a one-time, permanent membership, as long as you follow the rules and stay active.

"Limited" time was placed on the entrance fee amount.

When we hit a certain amount of members, the price will rise to $30.

It would be really a proud moment for me; if I get in this group & can contribute to HF with my technical expertise.

Application -

Professionally I am working as a Subject Matter Expert in HCL. I have an overall experience of around 5 years in the technical field. I really love to solve issues related to Internet connectivity, browsing & other windows operating system related stuff (issues & installed software's). Other than this, I quite a R & D oriented person. Even if it is out of my domain; I try my level best to get in to the root cause of the problem & ultimately solve it. Lastly, I would say, I am happy with my work & a proud techie!

Other than this technical aspect, I love to help people in general. It can be a simple advice or a feedback.

I would really love to be a part of this esteemed group. Thanks.

I honestly lost all respect for the group, now that you're offering an opportunity to pay-to-get-in. I know you want to be financially helped to pay back for the group, but the group is about writing tutorials and helping people.. Therefore, people would pay to work?

Dedicated members that enjoy the group would donate, rather than acquiring members that are just interested in a userbar. I'm not suggesting that all members that paid are like so..

I'm in high agreeance with you.

What's to stop a rich-boy from coming and buying membership just for the userbar?

Invite only groups have my respect to the highest but not at the cost of a buy-in having to take place.

If you're really wanting money that bad, get members and they'll donate if it's worth it.
