Let time take care of it :D... No, I'm only joking...

Can you post a proof (and describe how you managed it, if you want), please?

Lightbulbb - April 21, 2012, 11:24 am

Well, frankly, you're being a dumbass and someone will figure it out and get you caught, all it takes is a call to their CC company and they can get you easily.

(This is all in standards of the OP, no protections etc)

Big Bad Pie - April 21, 2012, 11:25 am

Wow why boast about this? That is some stupid shit dude, realise how easy you can get caught?

Maertyrer - April 21, 2012, 11:27 am

I bet you're surfing HF without VPN too? Anyone could find out your IP and report you :o)

Chances are you wont get caught this time. Chances are you wont get caught your next time. Chances are you wont get caught your next 50 times. However, hear me out when I say this. Do NOT get cocky. If you do this for long enough, and don't take the proper precautions every time, you will eventually be caught. It only takes one suicidal pedo/mad persecutor/or a few curious detectives to effectively end your black mailing career.

AKA: Stay low, be sure that you're protected, don't get cocky, and you're going to be fine.

Good luck out there.

There are so many ways one could get your IP - let alone the possibilities of HF being seized by the authorities or having it's database hacked and leaked. You should always take your security in your own hands.
