While our beloved owner Omniscient was away at Lake Tahoe this weekend HackForums went down for a lengthy time of 8 hours. The event occurred on the 22nd, only a day after HackForum's 5th anniversary. To see Omniscient's short and sweet announcement click the following link: <http://goo.gl/AXt0G>

Beware of phishers

Earlier this week there was talk of a phishing scam where a non-upgraded member would PM you yelling at you for a post. In the PM it would contain a link that looked like a link to a thread or reply, but when clicked it would take you to a phishing site where members would be prompted to log back in to HackForums. Omniscient has not commented on this matter, however some members believe that he is going to take legal action in hopes of shutting down the website. To view a warning thread regarding this event click the following link: <http://goo.gl/XqCMR>

TechSperts now mentoring

The TechSperts have been known for their tutorial making and wide variety of skilled members, however they have recently started a new mentoring program giving almost any member a chance to learn from the best here on HackForums. These Public Classrooms require members to apply, however they do post the lesson after they are finished for anyone that could not attend. [img]http://i.minus.com/juGD7pFSr607C.png[/img] Interview - Opulence \(Click to View\)

Waleed: Hello Opulence, I'd like to thank you for taking a few minutes out of your day to participate in this interview. We generally kick off our interviews by giving our interviewee's the opportunity to give their favorite HackForums colleague's a shout out. Do you have anyone in mind?

Opulence: ???G? comes first to my mind since we haven't spoken much lately! Should probably drop him a PM now lol. Then there is Sold, awesome girl. And of course the only sane mature person here Bugga. And let's not forget the mustbementioned Omniscient and Judge Dredd, strict to some but really cool to talk with.

Waleed: I hope they will be pleased to see their names mentioned in this edition of HF News. You may be aware that HackForums had reached its 5 year anniversary on the 21st; what are your views on this milestone?

Opulence: Every milestone reached is worth a celebration. HF grows, and changes for every day that passes by, to some in a more negative direction. To me, every change is positive as the site and community keeps growing and it's a normal thing that people always romanticize "the good old days when everybody loved anybody". I do however wish to see some of the rulings on disallowed blackhat activity be lifted.

Waleed: HackForums has definitely come a long way, and you've been around for much of its progress. This month marks two years since you've joined HackForums, can you recall of any memorable moments you'd like to share with our readers?

Opulence: Wow, has it been two years already? Memorable moments you say, hmm, HF is a jungle, epic things happens in the shadows all the time. But examples of noteworthy moments was when Braco got a whole country blacklisted, that was hilarious. So was the return of Hanzo, aka Judge Dredd and the thousands of repfucks that followed and who can forget Boxxxy and partners that scammed for thousands of dollars. P R O D I G Y pulled one off as well.

Waleed: I see you have lots of memories to reminisce. What brought you to join HackForums and what were your intentions?

Opulence: My original reason were embarrassingly enough to buy a Windows 7 key here, and just delete my account after that. I got not only one but several ones for free, and more keys for other software that got me stop using pirated, and cracked software. I stayed cause of the generosity by those members, and the great community that wanted me to learn.

Waleed: With three month worth of activity I have to ask what keeps you active on the forum?

Opulence: I'm not as active as I used to but I stay for the many discussions here, and the constant new methods to do things. If you want to learn, there's a lot of people willing to teach in this community.

Waleed: There are plenty of sections here on HackForums; even ones that don't revolve around hacking. Which would you say is your favorite and why?

Opulence: The Lounge for the laidback silly discussions, and the SRPP section for the more heavy discussions.

Waleed: I'm very joyous for our 5th anniversary and I'm sure much of the community is as well.

What can HackForums improve on for next year?

Opulence: Anything and everything always needs an improvement, I can't say what exactly but I'm sure Omniscient has tons of ideas for HF left in him. But as said before, keys and serials needs to return to HF, would fill a lot of pockets for some members here.

Waleed: I'd like to thank you once again Opulence for allowing us to interview you. Are there any last words you have for our readers?

Opulence: Stay active and stay positive and show others the respect you want for yourself. And Ub3rs and L33ts, you guys can always be nicer to the normal members, we've all been there, not the annoying trolls of course. And to answer a question I get PM'ed about constantly, no, you don't have to pay a cent to receive these awards.

Interview - Phismatic \(Click to View\)

Michael Westen: Hey Phismatic! Thanks for taking the time out for this interview! Before we begin, would you like to give a shoutout to any special members or friends on Hack Forums?

Phismatic: I'd like to give a shoutout to Koala. He's having a difficult time adjusting after coming out of the closet.

Michael Westen: Great - I wish the best to Koala, I know that you too struggled when you eventually came out. I am sure it'll get better! How did you find Hack Forums, Phismatic?

Phismatic: It's hard to remember, but I think I found HF from another forum I was on.

Michael Westen: Ah! That was a while ago, wasn't it? Back with DJ Keemstar and all of that nonsense. What has been your most successful accomplishment on Hack Forums?

Phismatic: Yeah, my most successful accomplishment on HF would have to be when I got accepted for ub3r.

Michael Westen: Interesting! Congratulations, I was certainly rooting for you. If you could change one thing on Hack Forums, what would it be, and why?

Phismatic: If I could change one thing, it would have to be to allow the disallowed blackhat activity.

Michael Westen: You have always had a tendency to be a naughty boy, haven't you Phismatic? That would be interesting, but would lead to legal repercussions for Omni. What's your best memory on Hack Forums?

Phismatic: My best memory would probably be getting uber. It's definitely a pretty cool to get accepted.

Michael Westen: I agree completely! It's the best feeling ever, I still have my acceptance PM from Omni I believe. What do you look forward to doing on 4/20?

Phismatic: I'm definitely looking forward to all the marijuana threads in the Lounge, there aren't enough of them. I'm going to enjoy myself with friends. What about you?

Michael Westen: I have no idea yet, thanks for asking! Hopefully I get to enjoy it also! In the spirit, what do you think about the marijuana legalization movement in the US?

Phismatic: I think its fine, I just want people to stop bitching about it personally. It doesn't hurt anyone. They'll just tax the shit out of it.

Michael Westen: I agree – Who knows, we'll see what happens. Do you have any closing regards for the readers/smokers out there?

Phismatic: Enjoy your holiday.

Eric Pfeiffer from Yahoo News stated that, "After all the attention, it would seem the president is giving the Ridiculously Photogenic Guy a run for his money."

North Korea in possession of 'Mobile weapons' with capability of Striking USA

Recently, a North Korean army official states that his country was armed with powerful mobile weapons with the ability to strike America. He also claimed that the weapons could annihilate the United States "at a single blow."

Reporters at Yahoo state that:

Quote:North Korea made another unusual claim Monday, promising "special actions" that would reduce Seoul's government to ashes.

North Korea is believed to have nuclear weapons but not the technology to put them on long-range missiles. A rocket launch that the U.S. claimed was a North Korean attempt to test missile technology failed this month.

[img]http://i.minus.com/jbnJDqXKVJiOjS.png[/img] Apple:

The tech giant Apple Inc. has released their quarter two earnings. They made a whopping thirty-nine billion dollars, with the fact that they sold less iPhones and iPads this quarter. Apple is believed it will be the first company to be worth a trillion dollars. It's currently worth about half a billion dollars. Apple has been achieving things other company's dream of. There are skeptics out there who say Apple will eventually be just a trend and fade out. A half a billion-dollar company fading out? I don't think so.

The "Cloud":

It seems like every computer company know is releasing a cloud storage program. Apple and it's iCloud, Microsoft's SkyDrive, Dropbox, and Box. Storing things in the cloud has become the easiest thing ever thanks to all these companies coming out with their programs. Google recently joined the party with Google Drive, a nifty name, which stores five gigabytes for free. Google's new Drive is supposed to be friendlier to users because it allows files up to ten gigabytes to be uploaded to their cloud storage. It is available on both Windows and Mac, also on Android and iOS.

Viruses:

New viruses have been going around like wildfire. The once thought to be untouchable OSX has been attacked many times this month with many new types of Trojans. Windows has always been attacked by viruses. There are many ways to protect yourself like: downloading things that you trust, don't open emails from an unknown address, disable Java (has been attacked a lot lately), and if you can get your firewall setup.

[img]http://i.minus.com/jbdTi8oysSZ1ey.png[/img]

"If you spent 4/20 doing something special, what did you do? In detail."

"A friend and I counted down 'till midnight before we lit our first joints. We had spent over $350 on weed and additional necessities to celebrate 420, so we were totally pumped. After four joints each, we went to sleep, since we had school the next day. We were at his house and his parents weren't at home, so the first thing we did the next morning was a peaceful wake and bake at the dinner table. My friend's mom had left bread from the baker, which we ate entirely by ourselves before we even arrived at school.

We were forty minutes early, so that was enough time for us to smoke another two joints and roll a sticky for the first break.

Class was perfect. Our teacher for the first hour didn't show up, so we spent the first hour outside, smoking. The teacher for the second hour was there, but I can guarantee you that we barely noticed that.

During our first break, we both went to the school bathroom and smoked our sticky. We had to drill it, since we only have five minutes.

When the bell announcing lunch break rang, we were the first two to get up and leave class.

My friend and I had made space cake for the occasion, so that's what we ate.

After we had finished our 420 themed lunch, we sparked up three more joints each.

On our way back to school, we encountered a cop riding a horse. We were barely able to hold back our laughter. The cop noticed we were baked as, but instead of arresting us like he should have, he wished us a happy 420 instead. We grinned, high-fived him, pet his pony and strutted back to class, laughing constantly as we were walking.

The afternoon classes were slow as hell. Teachers were talking about boring shit and we weren't even paying attention. The only thing that made the afternoon more fun was the occasional snort of laughter that came either from my friend or me.

When school was over, we went back to my friend's house where we smoked some more, but this time with Hash instead.

We prepared for a 420 party we were attending and left his house around 8PM.

The bus ride was hilarious. Everything was so beautiful, yet hilarious at the same time. The bus driver realized we'd smoked, but he didn't say a thing about it.

We got at the other guy's home around 9PM. We rang the door and a stranger opened the door. His eyes were red as fuck, so we were clearly at the right address.

We entered the house and thick white smoke greeted our lungs.

We still had a LOT of weed left and quickly lit up another joint.

The night was young and we practically smoked one joint after another. The host of the party had also made space cake, so that was pretty much our 420 dish, 24/7.

The last thing I remember doing on 4/20 was passing out in a hotboxed Peugeot 106 around 11AM. I woke up the next day, Saturday, around 6PM and still felt a bit hazy.

That was the best twentieth of April ever!"

"I think people need to chill. I mean what the world is coming to if young people started to smoke marijuana a lot. Imagine what society will be in the future: Full of prisoners, dropped out of school teens and so on. I think marijuana shouldn't be legalized, not the USA, Not in any other country in the world. What was illegal will stay illegal because it was illegal for a good reason. Now I know that people will start to hate me for this opinion but chill, I'm just trying to warn people. Thanks."

I do however want to confront Makaveli's opinion. Marijuana became illegal because hemp was considered a better alternative to timber. Thus, the timber industries started a fear campaign on weed which led to it becoming illegal.

Hey guys,

I have a few comments regarding this week's edition of the HF News; in it I will state the things that I like and the things that I think need to be improved. First off, let me say good job to the News team. I understand that you guys work very hard on these editions, and what I'm about to critique you guys on should not undermine your hard work. Let me start off by saying that despite promises that this edition would be released on Friday, this edition wasn't released on a Friday night. It was released on Saturday morning. You guys gotta work on your timing and should release a time when the News will be published because people wait to get the first few comments on the News.

Now, for the errors:

Quote:The TechSperts have been known for their tutorial making and wide variety of skilled members, however they have recently started a new mentoring program giving almost any member a chance to learn from the best here on HackForums.

Why did you use the word however? It doesn't contradict anything. Next, you guys messed up on SWAGSTER's link by putting to h's in http. As suggested last week, the names of the people in the interview should be clickable as was used in previous editions. Also, I think it'd be better looking if you didn't color Opulence's interview light blue.

I also noticed that the News team has been posting old information. For example:

Quote:Michael Westen: I agree completely! It's the best feeling ever, I still have my acceptance PM from Omni I believe. What do you look forward to doing on 4/20?

Also look at Phismatic's response to Westen's question. Looking forward to 4/20? 4/20 already happened. Also, Coachella happened last week.

Regarding the Web Show: Do you guys really think that given Youtube awards should be in the HF News. Although Omniscient had stated that he no longer gives the award out, NUMEROUS people (myself included) have received the award after that. No big deal. Another thing: Show more emotion when doing the Webshow, put some zeal into it. We can hear you announce the award monotonously then click, and announce another award and click again and repeat.

As noted by other members, you guys said that Killerpop89 had his account stolen twice, and you guys made a mistake on the value of Apple.

Quote:A half a billion-dollar company fading out? I don't think so. Apple is worth $500 Billion. Finally, to end my criticism, I don't really like the GFX gallery. I don't know if it's the theme of such works, but you guys have had REALLY GOOD GFX galleries in the past, so I'm waiting to see an improvement.

As for what I like about the News: Solid job on reporting the actual and important news - members truly can know what's going on by reading this edition. Also, it's nice to see that these interviews weren't lengthy. I wasn't aware that Gamestop was dropping the price of PS3s, but the News made me aware. Thanks.

Once again, don't let my post make you feel bad; however, you should consider what I'm saying. Please reply to this post if you have anything to say regarding what I said. Thanks for reading.

I'm sorry, but this edition the Tech news is completely astonishing. In the sense of it is awful.

First part is practically business news and has nothing to do with technology, second has several obvious grammatical mistakes, and third has been written when he obviously doesn't know anything about malware. It is just absurd how little effort specifically is put into that part of the news.

Rest of the edition was pretty interesting to read.

I assume it will be released today but then again i have lost my interest but still honor the time and effort the crew does to make the news happen.

Remember you were the one to tell them this. Members look up to the News and just get excited. Friday is what they were told my friend.

I don't see the problem with switching the official date to Saturday or something if that would be easier for the team. Then at least people wont be anticipating a release Friday night, and be disappointed when it doesn't come. Best thing to do in my opinion if Friday nights are so hard for the News team.

I'm not trying to be mean, I bet everyone has a life. But hypothetically if you worked for a company and they needed a paper due by Friday would you say "alright you'll have it by Saturday morning"

This was a great edition, I can't wait for the new one.

It's still 8:30 here. I still have time, and it will still get out on Friday night. I'm saying, if it's important to have it during the day, expect it Saturday morning.

The news isn't a profitable business, it is a voluntary service.

Thus nullifying your statement.

Damn, I meant to say theoretically, I know it's a non profitable business but if you promise something to a big group of people on a forum and knowing they get impatient 'it is the internet' you shouldn't put it off because "you have some time"

Sir is a very busy person, as well as myself and the rest of the news team.

I work hard on my part just like the other members of the news team.

The work isn't something that can be done in a matter of moments. Sir has school and other activities besides HF.

HF is a hobby, not a lifestyle, if the news being a few hours late bothers people enough to be upset about it then they should just look up the information themselves.

A little off topic but the news thread reached 100 replies this week!

Frankly, it takes me 2-3 hours to do the HF News. Keep in mind that I still write almost half of the articles. I need to find a window to do that, and it's usually later in the night.

I've been working on it for a little bit, it will be out soon.
