Hydro™ - April 29, 2012, 3:03 pm

Yeah I was just wondering my anime would have to be Ghost Hound when you first start watching it was creepy as fuck. Whats the scariest/Creepiest anime you've watched. I would also be interested to see what people post to see what I havent watched <3

zomgasd - April 29, 2012, 3:17 pm

Elfen Lied and that's pretty much it for now, anyways I've only watched up to 2 episodes on Elfen Lied I cba to watch it ?

Senior Sherlock - April 29, 2012, 3:32 pm

Holy Fucking Christ! Looky here it is Moka and another pointless thread asking for more pointless recommendations, shocker there. I seriously hate all your pointless threads, however I will say Ghost Hound is awesome and that alone will get you a recommendation.

Another \(Click to View\)Both series share;

- a similar eery atmosphere
- psychological horror genre?
- a dark mystery in need of uncovering
- a similar look, use of music and mood
- a main male protagonist who has had a death in the family

Now stop your LOW QUALITY posting that infects our dear AA section.

Just curious... Why do you flame a thread, but still support it at the same time? It's confusing. Your giving off mixed emotions.

Moka might just be curious whats the creepest anime you've seen? And if he/she have not seen it, he might see it.. Doesnt necessarily have to be a rec thread if the topic is about your personal experiences.

Spoiler (Click to View)

Higurashi gave me chills XD

DoubleRainbow - April 29, 2012, 4:14 pm

So please tell me what happens when we tell you ones you haven't seen? I am fairly sure you will go and watch them which then makes the anime we told you a recommendation for your list.

Funny stuff Golgo, funny stuff.

Wojak - April 29, 2012, 7:23 pm

Elfen Lied was pretty creepy at first but I got better after :)

I'm planning to watch Higurashi soon too

EDIT: I just started watching Higurashi no naku koro ni and it's creepy and scary as FUCK

Osuka - April 29, 2012, 10:07 pm

Yup i Agree with the people, "Elfen Lied" was the Creepiest Anime

I've seen so far, Probably because i don't watch Anime Like That Ha :)

Kamui - April 30, 2012, 12:38 am

I would have to agree with previous posts and say Another, It creates a disturbing atmosphere close to a good horror movie but not yet there.

Then again I watch too much horror to the point where I tend to laugh at people getting dragged away, especially paranormal activity :)

Well hollywood horrors are very generic and repetitive with the high pitched screams and the pleas to live and the paranormal activity or alien activity or mass murderer. It's just not that scary.

k-on fucking hell made me have nightmares about cake and tea for six months

?aragon - April 30, 2012, 3:09 am

IMO it was higurashi no naku koro ni, and umineko no naku koro ni.

tomchez - April 30, 2012, 8:38 am

For me it has to be Another, the whole creepy atmosphere/music and the doll scenes.

Omega2058 - April 30, 2012, 6:02 pm

So far I'm stuck between Elfen Lied and Another, so far I think Another tops the cake this time.

i seen none so far like when they cry and hell sing and Mirai Nikki and i thoght they were ok

Rakshasa - May 4, 2012, 6:56 pm

In all honesty, anime can't even come close to being as scary and gruesome as manga can be.

Go read something like Ibitsu or Hideout, those short, horror-dedicated manga will make you shit bricks.

Made a fast review on Ibitsu today. Seems kinda under the radar, so people, you should check it out ;)

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=2463910>

Anyway, I have nothing interesting to say so.. bye.

Ryan' - May 4, 2012, 7:12 pm

Gantz was pretty creepy, but not in a scary way. Just Kurono Kei's personality/behaviour. ?

Pikachu™ - May 5, 2012, 7:30 am

Higurashi no Naku Koro ni was pretty messy.

I still liked it though~

WannabeBlackhat - May 5, 2012, 3:50 pm

I don't know about anime but the creepiest manga you'll ever find is MPD Psycho

Well then back it up with an example, assuming you have read MPD Psycho. I would actually like for you to prove me wrong since I also enjoy the occasional horror manga.

It's still on-going, I read like 5 chapters long ago.

Just finished to chapter 28 now, as far as I've read I'll grant you it's strong on the psychology aspect.

It does however lack in this thread's exact purpose; being creepy/scary.
FYI, it's not even labelled as a horror.

Now, I could send your question straight back to you, concerning your previous statement..

Hollow Ginjo - May 5, 2012, 4:57 pm

Well it is creepy as hell and if it isn't already labelled as horror then it should be because its horrible. This is making even less sense now...

Please, read at least a fraction of Ibitsu and tell me how in the world it's inferior...

Please do.

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

MPD Psycho is a seinen-styled psychological manga where important characters get killed off left and right.

Sure, it's not for squeamish people, but in terms of this threads purpose, Ibitsu is on another level..

Why are we arguing about this in the first place?

Seems like I've been dragged into another pointless debate about irrelevant things..

Because for me Ibitsu just isn't that scary. Besides I already read all 14 chapters.

Children, stop it. This is a 100% opinion based thread.

It may be scary to some, others not. Dont bash it just because you are too "manly" to get scared by it. Gosh ._.

You're misunderstanding, comparing isn't bashing.

Opinionated people will always be ignorant if there's no opinion comparing.

It is off-topic though, since the OP requested anime not manga.

Just one more thing.

(May 5, 2012 05:59 PM)WannabeBlackhat Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Because for me Ibitsu just isn't that scary. Besides I already read all 14 chapters.

The difference between MPD Psycho and Ibitsu is that Ibitsu would qualify as what we'd call a 'horror-dedicated manga'.

When you read or watch something where the scriptwriter is trying his utmost best to scare you, with an incorrect mindset e.g. during daytime or with the lights on, it has the opposite effect.

The same applies for horror movies & controversial material like A Serbian Film or Philosophy of a Knife, they just end up being silly..

Now however, if you watch alone at night they will torture your imagination.

All I can see off MPD Psycho is ruthless killing, blood & gore. It completely lacks the horror atmosphere.

School Days was the worst anime by far I've watched from emotions in it.

The sad thing is that it's realistic and happens today.
