What alternatives are there to Gyazo?

I like what it does, but its a bit ugly and links are huge.

What do others use?

Cryptic™ - May 3, 2012, 2:44 pm

<http://screensnapp.com/>

I use it myself, it's amazing.

Screensnapp is a good one, and i personally just use printscreen , edit whatever needs to be edited and upload it for [censored].com

P?kachu - May 4, 2012, 1:12 pm

AFAIK Those are not instant screen shorting tools. Those are image hosting sites.

OP Wants a tool to instantly take screen shots.

puush is good.

www.puu.sh

It's really good, you just download it, hold ctrl+shift+4 and you can screenshot wherever you like on the screen.

Rolls Royce - May 5, 2012, 10:55 pm

I use puush. It's super easy.

screensnapr is by far the best choice.

P?kachu - May 8, 2012, 5:35 am

I have gone with screen snapr guys. Im enjoying it so far.

P?kachu - June 16, 2012, 2:59 am

I am re-ing this to ask again. I used Screen Snapr for a while but now its pissing me off that it never connects to the server when my PC boots.

It may be an issue I get with all of them but it seems my PC boots the application faster then connects to my internet so it keeps causing errors and its a ball ache

All of the prominent screen capture utilities have been suggested already. Is there a reason you can't you gyazo?

Its ugly and I hate all the adverts. However I may have to resort to it.

Im currently using Puush, which atm isnt too bad. Its certainly less errors then ScreenSnapr, but il see if I can live with it or just go back to Gyazo

My favorite image hosting sites are www.lmgur.com and www.Minus.com. The links are short and easy to use on HF.

This wasn't for image hosting, but for screen shott/upload tools.

What I did was find a open source version of Gyazo and modified it to link to my site. I then found a PHP script that let you handle the upload on your own server. I'm currently not using it, but it worked great when I did have it up and running.

The Illusionist - July 19, 2014, 11:24 am

Use LightShot for uploading screenshots and use imgur to upload images :).

Madison Ivy - July 19, 2014, 11:31 am
