The edition you are currently reading is the 90th full edition. To read any older editions of HF News, please go here.

[img]<http://i.minus.com/jba1spITkcOXLN.png>[/img] Dispute system

After hundreds of scam reports each month Omniscient has decided to make a new system which allows members to search a username to see all scam reports on a specific user. This will be very useful for members who frequently visit the marketplace as well as group owners that want to do a quick background check on a user. To view the new system click the following link:

<http://goo.gl/RwLtu>

Stress testing section open

After a long wait the Stress testing section is finally open to new sales threads. This will clean up the marketplace quite a bit considering a majority of the threads there were related to stress testing. Omniscient has also made it very clear that this section is strictly for stress testing and is in no way related to malicious DDoS attacks. To view the new section click the following link:

<http://goo.gl/GyCFC>

New Rule

E-Whoring has become very popular in the past few years on HF and many members have found several different ways to increase their income while e-whoring. One of the more popular ways was blackmailing the slave after e-whoring them. After seeing constant threads relating to this subject Omniscient decided to put an end to the discussion and ban the topic as a whole from HackForums. To view Omniscient's announcement thread click the following link: <http://goo.gl/0XSkH>

MOTM

It's that time of the month again and at this point in time there seems to be a clear winner. After being in several MOTM threads it seems Viral Dragon has finally won his first and last MOTM award. The winner is declared by Judge Dredd though and his word is final so anything can happen. To see the MOTM thread click the following link: <http://goo.gl/V2gOZ>

HJT Team changes

The HJT Team is a well known and respected group that helps track and remove malware as a free service to all HackForums members. Recently their leader Valiant has stepped down and both Infallible and T3h Hack3r will be the new leaders of the group. They also now have their own private subforum, and graduates will receive the HJT Graduate award. Omniscient has stated more changes are to come, until then nothing is certain. To view Omniscient's announcement thread click the following link: <http://goo.gl/wvhPW>

New awards

Two new awards have been added to HackForums this week, the "Gavel of Dredd" award and the "HJT Graduate award. It is unknown whether or not the "Gavel of Dredd" award will be given out any time soon however members are able to obtain the HJT graduate award by fully completing the training process. It has also been said that only 10 members will be able to receive the "Gavel of Dredd" award. To view the awards page click the following link: <http://goo.gl/ZBhw3>

Hijacked Twitter

Recently Omniscient's twitter was Hijacked and used in an attempt to scam twitter users. Omniscient has notified all HackForums members and is currently working with Twitter and his Lawyer to get his account back. Waleed: "Hello Subscription, I'd first like to thank you for allowing us to interview you. Before we kick off our interview do you want to take this opportunity to give your favorite HF colleagues a special shout out?"

Subscription: "Of course.. Where can i start.. Shoutout to Starstruck, Richard., Christy, .au3... and all the other new friends that iv got from here. And staff"

Waleed: "With the short time you've been with us you're quickly becoming a big part of our community. What made you join HackForums?"

Subscription: "I joined because I have had few friends here before and they told me about it and highly recommended it. I also thought i could make some business here as well"

Waleed: "May I ask what lead or influenced you to choose the username Subscription?"

Subscription: "You can thank Industrialized™ for that. He sold me the GT Subscription and it just came from there. I registered with username, IKR, I know right"

Waleed: "HackForums could appeal to anyone, even if their not extremely tech savvy like myself. What do you like and dislike about HackForums?"

Subscription: "I like the whole community. Most of it is so nice and helpful and have alot of knowledge about almost everything. I also like the Marketplace, as its very active. I totally dislike scammers and how they get away with it"

Waleed: "Substantial amounts of suggestions are flowing in on a daily basis. What changes do you believe can be made to help enhance our community?"

Subscription: "As i said, i dont like scammers and that they dont really get any punishment, even after tons of reports. However, i like the new plugin that Omni is working on to take down some of those people"

Waleed: "You've impressed many users and accomplished much around the forum. What do you think is your most successful achievement?"

Subscription: "This is hard one, there are quite a few. I enjoy being in many HQ groups, as well as I really enjoy peoples trust. Trust is hard to earn, but easy to lose. I hope I can keep it"

[img]http://i.minus.com/jl0EswX4V4jJf.png[/img] 5 Priests Banned from Ministry

Five priests were recently banned from ministry following allegations of sexual abuse, said Roman Catholic archbishop.

"When a child is harmed, the church has failed. When trust is lost, the church has failed. When the whole community suffers as a result, the church has failed," Chaput said. "We can't change the past. But I pray — and I do believe — that the lessons of the last year have made our Church humbler, wiser, and a more vigilant guardian of our people's safety."

While these cases were not considered sexual abuse, they were decided to be immoral, or behavioral issues. Reporter from USAToday stated, "Priests removed from ministry can agree to serve a life of prayer and penance in a church-run facility, where they can be monitored. Some might agree to leave the priesthood, while others may be laicized after a church trial. The priests can also appeal the decision."

Facebook Stock

Facebook executives recently started to convince investors that the IPO of the company is worth much more. With the higher price, the company would become the most valuable company, exceeding even Google Inc., as stated in the Wall Street Journal. Chief Executive Officer, Mark Zuckerberg, currently owns $18.7 billion dollars of stake in the company which is a hefty sum, making him stand out to all other major companies.

Space Station

The first ever private spaceship has been created. It's going to be the first private spaceship that's going to dock on the international space station. This is amazing movement on technology and space travel. People are now going to be able to travel in space. It still hasn't launched yet because of software that needs to be reviewed in order to make sure nothing goes wrong.

Facebook

Facebook's IPO is coming. And IPO makes a company go public and get into the stock market. Facebook's CEO Mark Zuckerberg will probably cash in his shares and make about a billion dollars. It's estimated that each share would be 35-40 dollars. Facebook's IPO is a highly awaited one because the company is doing great and people want to cash in on it's success.

iOS

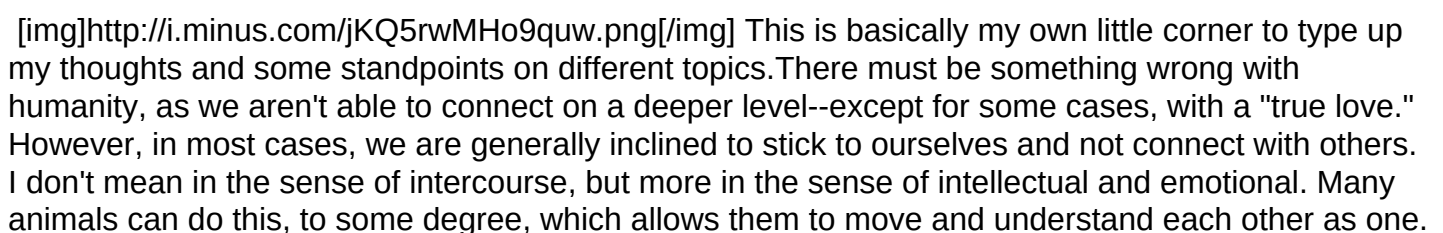

Firmware 5.1 was released a little while ago. And with that, a new jailbreak has to be recreated. There were some hackers who had their hands on a 5.1 untethered for the new iPad but they decided not to release it for whatever reason. Hacker and iOS dev p0d2g and his team have found several exploits that could untether the 5.1 firmware. Some are thinking they should keep these for the iOS 6 firmware launch that could be released during WWDC 2012.

 This is basically my own little corner to type up my thoughts and some standpoints on different topics. There must be something wrong with humanity, as we aren't able to connect on a deeper level--except for some cases, with a "true love." However, in most cases, we are generally inclined to stick to ourselves and not connect with others. I don't mean in the sense of intercourse, but more in the sense of intellectual and emotional. Many animals can do this, to some degree, which allows them to move and understand each other as one.

I believe humanity was once able to do this, but we have grown inward too much, our intellect has created a barrier around our mental processes and we are too afraid of connecting with people.

"How do you feeling about gaming nowadays, compared to old school gaming?"

"Funny this should be the topic. I was actually playing Dangerous Dave a few hours ago on DOSBOX (an emulator for those old MS-DOS games) and I have to say, it was the most fulfilling three hours of my recent gaming experience. The game was both tough as well as fun and had me hooked. I can't even remember the last time I played, say, Modern Warfare 3 or Assassin's Creed for that long. The current games just get repetitive and boring after a certain number of tries and there's only so many times one can shoot a Russian or assassinate an Italian (no offense to either nationalities). What I'm really trying to say is that games back then used to be fun. I mean, really fun. Space Invaders, Blitz, Street Fighter and so many of those old arcade games used to be the prime of my existence. Now they're taken over by franchises, corporations, DLCs and Pay to Plays. I envision an even sadder life for future gamers."

-BlackChaos

"I feel as if the gaming today is starting to get almost too real, the old school gaming was amazing, even games like pong were awesome. I fear that in the future there will be things that get you in the game itself, I just want to sit down and play on a console or a pc, not go into the game itself. I believe the day that it comes to that, is the day I stop gaming."

-PieBHP

"Well, First of all, I think that gaming became a part of everyone's life at some points. I mean today's gaming is totally different from the old school gaming. Gaming nowadays became like the films industry, it's all about graphics and how much emotion and impact it have on the viewer of the trailer, or the reader of the review about that game. I mean, everything became so real and beside, I think that nowadays, a game is just another game for the hardcore gamer. The games of yesterday, they were soemthing precious for the guy who bought it. I mean when you bought a game in that time, you keep playing on it and playing and playing, because you know that there isn't gonna be a lot of games after it, and even if you loose a level, you continue trying and trying and when you win, you reach that thing, that "Ecstasy", that's what made the game worth getting it. Nowadays, all of the gamers, excpet the real hardcore ones who appreciate the game for what is it, just give up easily, and know there gonna be another part of that game and they will always try again next time. They know if they loose in one game, there are thousands of other games waiting for them. Well, couldn't explained it very well, but I explained it my way. Thanks for your attention gamers."

-Makaveli The Don

"Gaming now is a lot different than now. About 10 years ago, just a patch of red was the best graphics, now it is nearly life-like. Our gaming experience is getting better & better every day."

Astonish is a great addition to the team; the position is perfect for him and he did an awesome job on his part. Please tell us what's your reasoning behind that comment because telling him what he did wrong will help him improve for the next coming edition, but by continually claiming he did a terrible job wont benefit him at all.

We're sorry that Astonish wasn't on to constantly check to see if someone was getting banned during the night of posting. Scooter - May 5, 2012, 9:25 am

Hey guys,

As usual, I'll give my honest opinion on everything HF News related, with the hope that someone actually reads what I write, and comments on it. First off, let me say this: I'm extremely disappointed with the time the HF News was released (4:00 AM EST), which is Saturday morning, not Friday night. Hell, I know everyone lives in different timezones, but I'm pretty sure that 4:00 AM EST is not 11:59 PM for any time zone. Last week it was released late, and same with this week; it's got to stop. I loathe that you (Sir) cannot release the News on time.

Moving on,

Quote: This will clean up the marketplace quite a bit considering a majority of the threads there were related to stress testing.

I highly doubt a majority of threads were related to stress testing. Next, most of the so-called "Notable Account changes" weren't notable, and the placing of Mr.X's name was sloppy. Also, on the title of Notable Account Changes, you guys should remove "Limitations" as Omni removed limitations.

Quote: While these cases were not considered sexual abuse, they were decided to be immoral, or behavioral issues. Reporter from USAToday stated, Grammar error - Should be "A reporter". As for the World News, you guys pick up some of the most boring [and unimportant] news. The World News section has the potential to be lively and interesting, but this World News segment was HORRIBLE.

Now, for the good stuff. I like the many headlines that there was, good job on updating us about what's really going on around HF. Also, I like the interview that you guys did; it was short and sweet. I didn't know about the Zerg Rush Google trick, so I thank you guys for showing me that, it's awesome. Finally, I'd like to say that the GFX gallery was fantastic. Good job on picking out good pieces, and a hat tip to Vitani's Mate for his stunning art piece.

Correct.

If Astonish wasn't online, you should've added the ban to the HF News yourself, you're the reason that the HF News was posted at 4:00 AM. You're also the fucking editor, please check the "Weekly Reports" section right before releasing the news to see if you missed something. If something occurs 6 hours before the News was released, I expect it to be on the News. By the same token, Verilog's 1000 reputation milestone should've been on the News.

I realize that I've been brutally honest in this week's edition. The thing that bugs me the most is Sir's attitude that "I can only do so much, I depend on my team for a lot". There have been previous editions on the HF News where only 1 person did the whole news, and it was successful and covered all the important news. I also can't stand the excuse that "we're just volunteers, we have lives, so don't expect everything to be perfect". Do the best job that you can.

If you can't do the HF News on time, PM me. I'll do the whole News, with my own cast, and I'll release everything on time.

It seems to me that Sir has the tendency to procrastinate, and that annoys a lot of people. I expect to see the HF News out next week, on time, with all the News covered. If not, you can bet that my (and others) review of the HF News will be more biting.

Thanks for reading.

I agree with scooter, though I was posted in the suggestions for getting banned and repfucked but I'm somewhat happy that I was not posted in the news :p, it was an OK thread this time, I prefer the earlier ones (due to the more up-beat and high quality-ness of the news). Thanks Sir.

Barneyyz™ - May 5, 2012, 10:39 am

In all fairness, I don't see the point of just putting lots of bans in the user news. Some are actually pointless, for example:

-?anta was banned.

-Vater was banned.

There's not much of a point posting them, as anyone that looks at their profile would be able to realise that. The fact Mr. X reaching 1000 reputation points should have been at the top, instead of being at the bottom and between two bans, as it's a much better accomplishment and should be treated like so.

That's not the only problem I have with the news, the Gaming News headers are very close to the paragraph above it, it looks incredibly cluttered. Not to mention, the headers should be the same, as they are all different. (May releases/Video of the week).

Lastly, Richard's thread giving away 10% off power ($1) to hundreds of members should have been in there too, as well it's a very generous thing he is doing.

-Other than that, it was once again a fantastic addition.

Oak - May 5, 2012, 10:39 am

Yeah Astonish, you're done. I gave you a chance to come back to the Writers, but you just try to push all blame of anything on me, then act like you weren't begging for weeks to get back in.

Mr. Anderson - May 5, 2012, 10:42 am

Thanks, however for the news every week. Just work on the timing. Pretend that it due on Thursday night, and that way you wont have to put everything together last minute. If anything is changed or needs to be added, the users on the team can just PM you about it and it wont take that long to add it in.

Also, I'm glad that my thread was in there, :).

There's a News Team dedicated in helping Sir with writing and producing the News. Also, if you find a notable event, report it here: <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=2448153> . It helps the News Team.

I just have a question on the "Notable Account Changes". Why are you guys adding banned members who are doing something wrong and breaking the HF rules as a "notable account change"? Last I checked, notable means something that's worthy to be noted for or something important. Being noted for doing something wrong? As many others, I'd consider promotions, retirements, gaining something good, vacations even, etc. as notable. I liked "User News" better as the title.

Don't take it seriously, just asking a question.

It is noteworthy because people are getting banned, which is something they shouldn't do, so the news raises awareness as to their reason.

Also; not to throw the dictionary at your face but:

Adjective:

Worthy of attention or notice; remarkable.

People getting banned is worth of attention.

Astonish fucked up. That part of it is only supposed to have people of notoriety in it, but he listed random people. Usually only moderately known to well-known members are listed. Repfucks are always listed. This is only what I've seen so far though, correct me if I'm wrong Sir :)

I don't think Omni or anyone else finds advertising, leaking, scamming, fraudulent donations, or trolling as remarkable. Why would you want to give them more attention to those kinds of people? I wouldn't mind seeing popular users who get banned but looking at this big list, it just has a lot of random people on it and for banned reason only.

At least rename 'Notable Account Changes' to 'User News' the banned account fits in them.

Astonish claims that he got more reports but 3/4 users are not even famous.

There should be a good detailed report not one line posts.

Written Topics and Notable Account Changes should be merged as User News.

I will give you a good example from previous news and your news.

From earlier issues.

It was mediocre editing. The beginning was, actually, great than it became sloppy. Great gameplay? Using a single and semi sniper rifles that go straight no matter what and getting killfeeds and doubles is "great"?

The montage, that I posted, was one of my favorites that had, as you already stated, fantastic editing. You want great gameplay?

Actually you are wrong there. He said he needed money for the group and contacted Reptar and Darkwin then he went behind their back and started PM-ing other members to donate as well saying he will repay them 200$ extra. He contacted a lot of Trusted members especially red emerald donors.

Also he was exchanging all the paypal he has acquired into LR/WU or MB when for the group he needed only LR but he took those as well as they are non refundable payment methods and he wanted to take as much as he can till he didn't get discovered.

Now he would have succeeded in all of it if he changed the name of his paypal. Awww Subscription such a grand plan so much time invested and made such a mistake. ;D
