[img]<http://i.minus.com/jba1spITkcOXLN.png>[/img] Bassc?de censored and members banned Bassc?de, a group infamous for leaking and cracking has recently been caught leaking several HF products. Many of the well known members were banned for the reason "leaking/cracking". The word Bassc?de was also censored to "spam" most likely to prevent discussion of the group.

Possible new rule

As many of you know the "Post here and PM me" threads have recently been banned in the Monetizing section. According to one of Omniscient's posts this rule may become an official site-wide rule on HF. Peter Chao, one of the main supporters of this change created a thread explaining the issue and why the rule should be put into affect. To read Peter Chao's thread click the following link: <http://goo.gl/7cPSe>

New sections

As per user request both the "Battlefield series" and "Mobile and Tablet gaming" sections have been added under the Gaming tab. Both sections were suggested by different users this week due to an overflow of threads in mixed sections around HackForums. Surprisingly Omniscient accepted both suggestions and quickly implemented them. To view Omniscient's tweet about the downtime click the following link: <http://goo.gl/UIxET>

Short downtime

Earlier this week there was short period of downtime while Omniscient did a maintenance reboot. Not much is known about this event other than that it was nothing out of the ordinary for HF members. To view Omniscient's tweet about the downtime click the following link: <http://goo.gl/j85Y2>

bugga, Mark Webber, The GRim and other well known members are being impersonated in order to scam people out of money. Read more about it here, here, and here.

Subscription has had his account closed and repfucked due to to ban evading. It turns out that he was actually Legitti, a known scammer. You can see the thread here.

[img]http://i.minus.com/juGD7pFSr607C.png[/img] Interview - Oldskool. \(Click to View\)
Waleed: Thanks for tuning in HF News readers. I'm here with the one and only Oldskool. An all-around member of the Hack Forums community. Oldskool would you like to take this opportunity to give your closest HF friends a shout out?
Oldskool.: Oh definitely! First of all, thank you for offering me this opportunity. As for shout outs, I'd like to give one to Diabolic, Dr.BrokenGod, Mark Webber, everyone in team Syndicate and of course, my good friends in the AA section.

Waleed: You're very welcome, you definitely deserved it. I hope everyone you've mentioned are pleased to see their names featured in this edition of HF News. All of us have joined HackForums for different reasons; I joined in a poor attempt to show off my virtual goods in the Habbo Section, ironically one year later I'm still here. What influenced you to join HackForums and what was your aim?

Oldskool.: Mine was quite an unfortunate happening, to be honest. I had downloaded a virtual credit generator for a game called 'Battlefield Heroes' from YouTube. This, obviously, was fake and infected. The attacker made a window pop-up on my screen that said, "I'm in a good mood. Either you join a forum and use my referral link, or I'll destroy your computer.". The latter obviously wasn't my preferred choice, so I ended up signing up on Hack Forums!

Waleed: That's quite a bizarre technique to gain referral points. You yourself have accomplished much around HackForums; A sky rocketing 1079 reputation, 5 awards and even a stickied thread. What would you say is your greatest accomplishment here on HackForums?

Oldskool.: Aww, I'm flattered. Well, having Omniscient re-open the HMSE section for the second time is without a doubt my biggest accomplishment thus far.

Waleed: Sadly it's been closed once again. What made the HMSE section so important to you and do you still wish to see it unlocked?

Oldskool.: The HMSE section is what has kept me active on HF during my 'darker' period in life. I started manipulating when I was eleven years old, so it's a part of me. I've put heart, soul and lots of hours on threads in the HMSE section, so I was really sad to see it getting closed another time. That's why I've decided to create a new, unofficial group on HF called "Syndicate". We consist of members specialized in human manipulation and our main goal is to convince Omniscient of re-opening the section once again. Our ways are unsure as of now, though.

Waleed: You were quite the little mastermind. Would you say Syndicate has made progress since it's launch as a group and is there a possibility of seeing the groups main objective regarding the HMSE section being achieved anytime soon?

Oldskool.: Syndicate has definitely made a lot of progress up 'till now, although not on Hack Forums. Crow, the previous admin in charge of stolen accounts on HF, has made Syndicate an official group on his myBB forum. We've also grown quite a bit in numbers and since everyone tends to think alike, we also really enjoy each other's presence and talk daily on skype. Our main goal has unfortunately been postponed to an unknown date since I forgot to stick to the main plan.

Waleed: For our readers who are unaware of what the HMSE section is, could you briefly describe the controversy as well as the intent of human manipulation and social engineering?

Oldskool.: Lets just say that human manipulation and social engineering are two entirely different things. It's mainly not about getting free items from companies. That is, unless you walk up to a company owner or a help desk in real life and use false documents in order to acquire those. It's really about understanding human behavior, etc. Even though the terms are related, or basically mean the same thing in a way, I'd say that human manipulation refers more to the psychological point of view, which is what I love, and social engineering refers more to item fraud. [/color]

Waleed: You have tremendous knowledge and familiarity regarding this topic. I'd like to thank you for shedding some light with our readers. I hope they've enjoyed reading your responses as much as I did. Do you have any last words before we end this interview?

Oldskool.: I guess I could say that no one should ever accept candy from a smelly man in a white van, because my mother has taught me that candy is bad for your teeth!<3

Interview - Assyrian \(Click to View\)

Chocothunda: Hello HF readers; we're here with Assyrian today. Thanks for joining us in this interview, Assyrian. First of all, I'd like to say happy birthday to you on behalf of the News Team! Before we start, would you like to make any shout-outs?

[\[color=#00BFFF\]Assyrian](#): Hey, thanks for the birthday wishes, I'd just like to thank Nivarka for helping me back in the days to getting where I am today ;)

Chocothunda: Absolutely welcome, I'm sure he will appreciate the shout-out. With the vague sections of HackForums, nearly anyone can join and find a section suited for them. How did you personally find out about HackForums, and why did you join?

[\[color=#00BFFF\]Assyrian](#): I personally found out about HackForums over Google when searching for some beginner hacking techniques, after a bit of skim reading I realized that the forum was full of potential and began my journey from there.

Chocothunda: Look's like you made a good choice! What is the most important thing you've learned from HF?

Assyrian: A well-known quote, "You can't learn to hack, you hack to learn".

Chocothunda: That's quite an inspirational quote. It disappoints me seeing people take advantage of free information from HackForums for the wrong purposes. If you get children some day and they grow up to be teenagers, would you approve of them being on HF? (Assuming it is still around and hasn't changed much)

Assyrian: Personally, yes I would, just based on the fact there is so much to learn from the community, I know I've learnt a lot, not just about hacking but day to day things that you don't always notice.

Chocothunda: I couldn't agree more. The amount of knowledge one can gain if he looks in the right place is endless. You have an interesting username, how did you get it?

Assyrian: I'm quite into history myself, aswell as religion, so I put some thinking into this and went for something quite unique and the first thing that I genuinely considered was the name Assyrian which is a group of people that were a great influence on the Christian religion which means a lot to me.

[/color

Chocothunda: I hear they were a mighty country back in the day, having an empire that streched from the Mediterranean to the head of the Persian Gulf, along with what was was said to be the first true professional army in history. Thanks for the little history lesson. I'm also quite fascinated with it as well. Wrapping it up now; what would you say is your favorite section on HF?

Assyrian: I'd say that the Gaming section would be my favorite section, solely based on the fact that I spend majority of my time there, and there is always new content to read up on, aswell as it spreads from platform to platform making it hard to become an oudated section and it's something I value quite highly in my life.

Chocothunda: You sound like you have your life, passions, and priorities, right where you want it, and I'm sure it will further your success inevitably. I'd like to thank you for joining me in this interview and I've had a great time. Before we go, do you have any last words for the readers?

Assyrian: It's a pleasure, I'd just like to say thank you for taking your time reading and good luck with every ambition you have in life and never give up.

[img]http://i.minus.com/jl0EswX4V4jJf.png[/img] Mexican Police find numerous mutilated bodies
Police in the western state of Jalisco, Mexico, had recently found an estimated figure of 12 mutilated remains. On further inspection of the vehicles the bodies were found in, an addition of six more were counted. The police suspect that the Zetas drug cartel is involved due to a threatening note found alongside the bodies.

Due to the state the remains are in, forensic experts have not yet been able to identify whether or not the remains are male or female.

Thirteen French fire fighters detained over recruit rape

A number of fire fighters from Paris have been detained after an alleged rape of a rookie. The supposed attack took place on a coach from a sports competition of which the fire fighters were returning from.

When he protested, several other young firemen got involved in the occurrence. According to Le Parisien newspaper, the slave was stripped, bitten and pinned down while filmed being sexually assaulted.

It is claimed there will be a thorough investigation, and the Paris Fire Brigade have stated that the incident was "particularly serious".

Ex-Detective imprisoned for love rival murder

Stephanie Lazarus, 52, who was a detective in Los Angeles was recently sentenced to 27 years for first degree murder. 26 years earlier in February 1986, a 29 year old nurse, Sherri Rasmussen died after being beaten heavily and obtaining three gunshot wounds to the chest.

[img]http://i.minus.com/jbnJDqXKVJiOjS.png[/img] iPod

A man had 4 magnets implanted in him to hold the new iPod nano (small square model). The iPod nano has sparked a market of new products like a wrist watch holder for the iPod watch interface. The thing mostly that is concerning is that if apple comes out with a new design, will it keep the same dynamics as the iPod of the previous generation?

Blackberry

Rim which owns blackberry has applied for another 2 patents. It seems like Rim is trying to cling on every last little string they have. Rim is a company that has been having a difficult year and much loss in people use and money loss. They have been losing contracts and people using their phones because blackberry has been late to the game of changing their phones and getting into the touch-screen market.

iOS

p0d2g has jail broken firmware 5.1 untethered on the new iPad. After much hard work, 2g and other iOS hackers have managed to untether the firmware. It's still not ready for public debut but it's a step in almost getting there. Apple recently released 5.1.1 and it seems like the exploits found for 5.1 still work on 5.1.1. Still don't update until everything is for sure.

 Juelz Santana: Album with Lil Wayne Coming

After a five year wait for the callabo album from Lil Wayne and Juelz Santana, it still hasn't lost momentum.

A large sum of mixtape songs were leaked on the internet in just a few days of their recording. Both rappers later revealed that the new album is in the process of being recorded & produced.

No official release date has been set for "I Can't Feel My Face".

MCA of the Beastie Boys Has Died

He was the founding member of the Beastie Boys. They started to become more popular during the 1980's with big hits such as "Brass Monkey," "Sabotage" and "Sure Shot."

Pepsi Reunites With Michael Jackson in New Ads

On May 3rd, the company has announced a deal with estate of Michael Jackson to use the pop star likeness and music as apart of their advertisement. There will also be special edition can's with Michael's image, and new remixed versions of a few of his hit songs.

In 1984, Michael has suffered from severe burns from his head when his hair got caught on fire when shooting a commercial for Pepsi. The company provided Michael with $1.5 million for his injuries.

Fans in the U.S & China will be the first to lay eyes on the advertisement as the campaign kicks off in the up-coming weeks.

Beyoncé Set to Win Writing Award from NYABJ

The Grammy Award winning singer will win a writing award from the New York Association of Black Journalists

Nicki Minaj to Headline Hot 97's Summer Jam

Just eight days ago, New York based radio station has announced the line-up for the annual concert series. Maybach will be represented with Wale, Meek Mill, and Rick Ross. Nicki Minaj will be representing for the YMCMB family along with Tyga who will perform "Rack City" in front of 50,000 fans.

Music Video of The Week

[img]http://i.minus.com/jKQ5rwMHo9quw.png[/img] This is basically my own little corner to type up my thoughts and some standpoints on different topics. This time it's more of an announcement than my own personal thoughts. I am thinking about giving up some of the sections I write so as to decrease the load on me. I've been doing this for a long time, and in five days I'll have been on the HF News team for a year, running it for seven months. I just think it's time to sit back a little.

"What do you think of the HJT Team?"

"From a HJT Teacher's point of view, which I am one, the HJT Team is like a family. I came from the HJT Team from SupportForums and then was transferred here. People take us for granted, and think that this will be a short and easy process. Hence why Omniscient wants the curriculum to be only 2 months which is impossible. People don't understand how malware removal takes. It's not about rushing to the finish line. It's now about how we make the practice logs long and complex. It's about how we teach the material and making sure a trainee understands the material. 4 months would be suitable for graduating or more. The HJT Team is how you say "uncomplete". Our practice logs will be redone, and teachers will finally get paid. So far there are a few active teachers which are Infallible, T3h Hack3r, Tha Sneak, Deltron, and lastly, myself. We get pissed when we see a cheater in the team, which Infallible caught one yesterday. Under the former leader, Valiant's leadership, nothing happened. It's like he didn't care about us. He was always secretive and would just log on then just log off the whole day. But now, seeing new leadership, I hope to see changes be made. I am sure Infallible, and T3h Hack3r will create these changes, with Paradoxum advising them."

-Brandenx781

"Every member in the HJT team is worthy of my respect, and everyone's respect. They do so much good on HF and should be recognized. They volunteer their time to assist members here, something that really doesn't happen too much online, and very rarely in the real world. This group is the only group that I can fully respect and appreciate each one of their members, and truly say that HF would be at a loss if any of them resigned or become inactive."

-Pali

The topic for next week is "What do you think of the HF News?"

To send in your entries for the next edition, PM Sir.

Hey guys,

As usual, I'm going to insert my opinion on the HF News and the HF News Team. This review may be a bit harsh, but I think that what I'm about to say is accurate, and it should make you think. I know you guys work hard on the News, so don't be too discourage with my words, just heed them. So without further ado, I present my review:

First things first: Again, the News was released late (at 2:14 AM EST) on Saturday morning. I understand that there are different time zones, but the time that you posted it is Saturday morning for a majority of users. You said that the News would be posted on Friday night. With that being said, I laughed out loud at the Sir's second. Quote:I am thinking about giving up some of the sections I write so as to decrease the load on me. Really? Many people (myself included) have told you repeatedly to make the HF News more Hackforums centered. Also, you have a fucking News team. You bring this on yourself with your shitty submitting articles times and your shitty posting News time. I declined to help the HF News simply because of your schedule, and Astonish was thrown under the bus last week because of your schedule. I'll have more to say about this later in this post.

As for the errors: Click this link: <https://i.imgur.com/RDFOt.png> to view the errors I'm referring to. Each error corresponds to the item number below. (Excuse my sloppiness at MS Paint).

"According to one of Omniscient's posts this rule may become" you forgot to put a comma after Omniscient's.

"created a thread explaining the issue ad why the rule" I think you mean and why.

"As per user request both the "Battlefield series" should have a comma after request.

"To view Omniscient's tweet about the downtime click the following link: <http://goo.gl/UIxET> ".

Omniscient's tweet about downtime has nothing to do with New sections. Were you copying and pasting? Also, link to the direct tweet not his twitter account.

Take away Limitations from the banner, they don't exist anymore.

Diabolic's name shouldn't be red as it could confuse people with him being limited.

"which is what I love, and social engineering refers more to item fraud.[/color" You guys made a mistake with the BBCode.

"Waleed: You have tremendous knowledge and familiarity regarding this topic. I'd like to thank you for shedding some light with our readers. I hope they've enjoyed reading your responses as much as I did. Do you have any last words before we end this interview?" Why is Waleed's name purple? It shouldn't have been, maintain consistency.

You guys made another BBCode mistake with Assyrian's name. It's only BBCode, it's not fucking hard.

"Police in the western state of Jalisco, Mexico, had recently found an estimated figure". I think you mean have recently found.

For the Blackberry excerpt on the Tech News, what's up with the random line breaks?

"Burnin'Bob got the Turkey award for revealing his information about Subscription two days after the fact." You forgot to bold Subscription's name.

As for the general comments: Good job to the new User News writer, I like the new style. On the notable threads you guys already mentioned that bugga was impersonated, and I honestly don't think that every feedback thread is newsworthy. I'd love to see a voice interview being done, as I think that text is slightly more impersonal than voice interviews. The World News was complete crap (I could've said something worse, but I realize that everyone has feelings). What were you thinking?! That random rape and murder stories are interesting? HELL NO. Put something important or funny on there. Finally, I'd like to say that I like Minnesota Nice's and CUBEE's art in the GFX Gallery. It was awesome, good job.

Yes, I've been working on this post for about an hour, and I think this was amongst my better reviews. Last week, I called you (Sir) out on your horrendous timings yet I didn't get any public response. You told me in PMs that you're not going to change your timing, but didn't tell me why; tell everyone why you won't release the News in an orderly fashion. The Sir's Second was SO BAD because you're essentially complaining about something that's a privilege to do, and which other members would love to do. My challenge from last week still stands: Give me a week to do the HF News and I'll do it with my own team. Personally, I don't think that it's such a large task in which I need to work on it every day and publish it at 2:15 AM.

Seems to me that you're not editing well-enough. I was able to find about 12 errors in this week's edition, and some of those errors were pretty noticeable. Stop relying completely on your News team to check every section, and start checking it yourself. Frankly, I think that I do more editing on the HF News that you do.

By the way, the entry on opinions should be interesting for next week ?. As always, PLEASE comment, argue, and/or reply to what I'm saying. It's nice to know that someone reads these posts. I'm looking forward to seeing your responses. Once again, I know that the News team works very hard.

Thanks for reading.

Your feedback is always appreciated by me, Scooter.

I used to point out grammar errors in the HF News, and it's not worth it, they don't even get corrected after publication.

I have to say, when tons of people offer to help out with something that stays sloppy, there's a problem. Sir says he's busy, but declines to take more volunteers.

I appreciate Sir's work, but at the same time, I see nothing but truth behind Scooter's "harsh yet sharp" criticism. As such, I'm not sure what my opinion should be at the moment.

From what I've heard regarding the organization of the HF News, you have a problem with everything. You're lazy, that's all. Your excuse for not posting it at a specific time is "things happen" ?? Last week, you compared the HF News with The New York Times. I'm pretty damn sure that they release their editions on a schedule, whether "things happen" or not. Even if things happen, there's other ways to getting around it. What a bad excuse.

Doing it every week is easy when so many people want to be in the Writ3rs group just for the userbar. The unofficial News that many people have done fail because there is no real incentive for joining an unofficial News team. You, on the other hand, can offer people group membership. You know that as well as I do.

Diabolic's name shouldn't be red as it could confuse people with him being limited.

"which is what I love, and social engineering refers more to item fraud.[/color]" You guys made a mistake with the BBCode.

"Waleed: You have tremendous knowledge and familiarity regarding this topic. I'd like to thank you for shedding some light with our readers. I hope they've enjoyed reading your responses as much as I did. Do you have any last words before we end this interview?" Why is Waleed's name purple? It shouldn't have been, maintain consistency.

You guys made another BBCode mistake with Assyrian's name. It's only BBCode, it's not fucking hard.

"Police in the western state of Jalisco, Mexico, had recently found an estimated figure". I think you mean have recently found.

For the Blackberry excerpt on the Tech News, what's up with the random line breaks?

"Burnin'Bob got the Turkey award for revealing his information about Subscription two days after the fact." You forgot to bold Subscription's name.

As for the general comments: Good job to the new User News writer, I like the new style. On the notable threads you guys already mentioned that bugga was impersonated, and I honestly don't think that every feedback thread is newsworthy. I'd love to see a voice interview being done, as I think that text is slightly more impersonal than voice interviews. The World News was complete crap (I could've said something worse, but I realize that everyone has feelings). What were you thinking?! That random rape and murder stories are interesting? HELL NO. Put something important or funny on there. Finally, I'd like to say that I like Minnesota Nice's and CUBEE's art in the GFX Gallery. It was awesome, good job.

Yes, I've been working on this post for about an hour, and I think this was amongst my better reviews. Last week, I called you (Sir) out on your horrendous timings yet I didn't get any public response. You told me in PMs that you're not going to change your timing, but didn't tell me why; tell everyone why you won't release the News in an orderly fashion. The Sir's Second was SO BAD because you're essentially complaining about something that's a privilege to do, and which other members would love to do. My challenge from last week still stands: Give me a week to do the HF News and I'll do it with my own team. Personally, I don't think that it's such a large task in which I need to work on it every day and publish it at 2:15 AM.

Seems to me that you're not editing well-enough. I was able to find about 12 errors in this week's edition, and some of those errors were pretty noticeable. Stop relying completely on your News team to check every section, and start checking it yourself. Frankly, I think that I do more editing on the HF News that you do.

By the way, the entry on opinions should be interesting for next week ?. As always, PLEASE comment, argue, and/or reply to what I'm saying. It's nice to know that someone reads these posts. I'm looking forward to seeing your responses. Once again, I know that the News team works very hard.

Thanks for reading.

Most of that was just nit picking.

I would prefer the news was more HF centred too so why don't you do one each week that is & post a link in the news comments section? If it's far better than the official one then people will vote with their feet & yours would get the better ratings. If people prefer yours then Omni might make yours the official one in time.

I hope this happens. I'm sick of these post and PM threads. If you're in the Xbox 360 section and have read my tutorials, that's me bypassing the post and PM bullshit and just giving it to everyone. I'm sure some appreciate this.

Yes, there is a need for feedback. It's so you know that you need to improve sharply. Last week I said that the World News was horrible, but you didn't seem to respond. I'm glad this week you noticed it. Look again at that "World News" you posted, it was all about murders? Why?

Perhaps you could've posted something about President Obama's view of gay rights, as that's important. I honestly don't know why you thought some random murders were important.

I see where you are coming from, Scooter. Why does it matter if they day has been changed? In my opinion, it's been changed for a pretty good reason. Sure, it's a good reason. The time the HF News is released is important to others and myself because we wouldn't mind getting the first comments ?. But Sir can never stick to his times. I've yet to see an edition that Sir posted with minimal errors and that is released at a good time.
