[Guide] What should I do now?

Did you just finish watching (insert title here)? Did you just finish reading (insert title here)? Did you just finish playing (insert title here)?

STOP, DON'T MAKE A THREAD. Here's what you're going to do next:

e.g. Clannad (Anime):

Note - Open Notepad/Wordpad/Word/etc to keep a list of things that catch your attention.

[Anime Charts] -

If you would prefer something that is currently airing or due to air, then select something from the charts:

Code <http://twitter.com/#!/animucharts>
<http://atxpieces.wordpress.com/author/atxpieces/>
<http://neregate.com/blog/anime-charts/>
[ANN*] -

Search term/s > "Clannad"

Follow the link and you'll find a list of related titles that you can start on.

[*Baka-Updates Manga] -

1. For current or due to be released Manga - On the right hand side, you'll see a link "What's New!" which will lead you to a list for the current year. Play with the filters to suit your needs and then all you need to do is click on the title which will give you information such as the scanlation progress and user submitted reviews.

2. Use the search box to find the title that you just completed. On the main page of the title, there will be all the information you will need. This website is especially useful since most of the text contained are live links. Scroll down for more precise searches such as in the context of authors and artists.

3. Alternatively, you can find something via the other links on the right hand side such as "Genres", "Categories" and "Stats".

1. Click on the developer's name and scroll all the way to the bottom where there's usually a box with the complete works. Choose something and go from there:

2. Similar to the first method, but instead by studio, director, or in other cases writer.

[MAL*] -

1. Copy one of the genres, character names, or people involved in the production and search for it in MAL using the search box in the right hand corner - Don't forget to use the selection menu.

Usually, there will be a list of results if there has been more than one production. Didn't know about one of them? Go and watch that. If not, there is a "Recommendations" tab that contains a list of user submitted titles. Sometimes, there are comments alongside to help you.

2. Same method as Wiki with the staff. Click on the "Characters & Staff" tab and go from there.

3. Advanced search - Instead of searching a term as in the first method, click on the magnifying glass icon and then "Advanced search" next to the other search box. This will bring you to the advanced search page. Play with the filters and you should find something that will suit your needs.

4. Click on the "Anime" tab, and then the "Top Anime" sub-tab (Same thing with the Manga tab). If you like jumping on bandwagons, then try one of those listed there.

[*BakaBt] -

Note - you do not need an account in order to do this.

At the very top, click on the link that says "Random" (you may have to do this a few times since there are no filters). Eventually however, you will find a title that should seem interesting enough to you.

[*anime-planet] -

1. anime-planet has a very handy tool that you can use to find titles easily. On the homepage, scroll down to where it says "Browse by Tags". Clicking on your choice of genre/theme should lead you to a list of things that you can take a shot at.

2. Same method as MAL #2.

3. Same method as MAL #3.

[*AnimeBytes] -

Note - You need an account in order to do this.

Note - This method is mainly for games, but you can use it for other media too.

Click on the "Torrents" tab and in the main box click "Game Search Options". Play with the filters and find a title you like.

[*VNDB] -

Note - This method is for games/visual novels.

Click on the "Visual Novels" link at the left hand side and use the arrows to play with the release date, popularity, and rating. The icons in the second column will alert you of the compatibility between systems and languages that the title is available in.

[Other Charts] -

Here are some recommendation charts you can look at as well. Thanks to elsie for the help.

Ok, so now you should have a title or two that have caught your attention. Now you ask: "Wait, how do I know that this is good?" Here are a few things you can do:

1. Read the synopsis < THIS IS A MUST. Don't ever start something without knowing this.

2. Check for reviews < BE AWARE OF SPOILERS. Users should usually state whether their review contains them. If not, then don't read it, or at the very least, be careful. MAL, ANN and AP are places where you can find them. Otherwise:

Google > Search terms > "(insert title here) (insert media type here) review"

3. Check for ratings < As well as reviews, ratings are also a good factor to boost the ensurance.

4. Above all, if you read that it's bad and you think that you still may like it, GO FOR IT.

If all else fails or you need that extra bit of re-assurance, then go ahead, make your damn thread.

Have a nice day.

Another great thread that will most likely fall to the second page. All great tips for newbs looking for something to watch. Nice contribution.

Rakshasa - May 13, 2012, 5:52 pm

Bump, this needs to stay at the top until newfags start to learn..

All of these half-assed recommendation threads make my eyes bleed -.-

Prox - May 13, 2012, 5:58 pm

Nice guide ^_^ ... Never thought about using the BakaBT random option to find Animes o.o Thanks <3

KernelMode - May 13, 2012, 6:01 pm

Thanks for the tutorial. Bookmarking it now. ?

Osuka - May 13, 2012, 6:03 pm

Nice guide man, and i agree with DR,
all good guides/threads die two the second page

and then forever lost. :<

GL1TCH3D - May 14, 2012, 6:13 am

Very nice guide! I'll probably be using this, though, there's always going to be some anime that's not really looked up to that can be recommended by another member that you wouldn't necessarily see as a recommendation on sites like MAL.

?hadow - May 14, 2012, 6:49 am

I only use MAL recommendations or just anime that I've heard about, I always try to keep my 'to watch' list at about 50+ anime which I store on titanpad. Then I use a random number generator to pick which anime I'm going to watch so I don't have to spend time choosing.

Ah, that's fun! xd

I just keep a list on MAL and which ever series happens to be on my microsd card is the one I'll watch.

On-topic: Finally. Let's keep this at the top people, we need treads like these!

Ryuku - May 14, 2012, 8:21 am

New-fag or not, this applies to everyone.

I've now added Baka-Updates for the Manga readers.

Also, can anyone please let me know if the IRC is still active so that I can add that in?

Please link to this thread whenever you can too.

Thanks.

You mean choosing the complete bottom one or just looking for a name that seems interesting?

Fun-fact: I found my favorite anime by random clicking in an anime list.

I've actually been looking for animes with a similar sort of method for a while now. Of course, I always want to consult some of the AA community if I'm not sure about a series.

Many thanks elsie. zZParadoxZz, that's fine as long as you've tried to search yourself beforehand.

Ryuku - July 31, 2012, 12:39 pm

Thanks guys, and Arruke, notice the last line in the first post.

This needs poking yet again.

Voice - August 2, 2012, 11:35 am

Sorry, but who would actually read all of this? ESPECIALLY since I can't even tell what threads you are trying to avoid by the title or the first couple of sentences. All I know from reading some of this is that you're trying to get people to not make a certain type of thread.

A.K.A. write down that you do not want any "I need a new anime/VN/Manga" threads made.

It's not hard to figure out what I'm talking about. Everybody else understands it. It's your problem if you're too lazy to read it.

Anyway, Orihime just summed it up for you - I'm trying to prevent any unnecessary recommendation threads. By all means people can make those threads, but I'm helping them first by offering alternative methods to finding something new, other than to just asking AA.

•Lawliet• - August 20, 2012, 9:51 pm

Noticed the non-ending battle against "not so useful threads" has risen again.

This seriously need a sticky.

When someone asks for a new anime to watch, I always link them to this thread ?

Ryuku - August 26, 2012, 12:27 pm

It's been a while. Thanks for all the support guys.

-Jonniy- - September 28, 2012, 6:25 pm

This is one of those high quality guides which tend to be ignored.

That is a sad fact as it is one which is really handy, especially for those who are new (or have watched less than 50 anime) to anime.

It even helps out users who have watched many anime as a quick reference, bundling many useful links.

In addition to the provided information it is written in a comprehensive manner and is easy to understand.

I wanted to this guide for some time but i thought that i should give some feedback.

Wojak - September 28, 2012, 6:32 pm

I really think this thread should get stickied. There's too many people making "New anime to watch" threads

Ryuku - October 3, 2012, 4:54 pm

It's been a while. Thanks for all the support as usual.

Hentai? - October 3, 2012, 5:39 pm

Post something else Ryuku. No C and P your old comments. ;)

This should be a sticky honestly it's really helpful. Not that I might still ask for recommendations sometimes. ;)

Ryuku - October 4, 2012, 2:50 pm

C&P? I did change it, slightly ;)

Also, I've said before that it's perfectly fine to ask for recommendations but as long as you've tried to search yourself before hand.
