So yeah, I just watched the first 2 tutorials of Marv and decided to give a try at making a theme...

So here is the result :

It is very discrete and will suit, I think most of your projects...

It uses theme base 1.5.4 but I include it in the class.

So without further due :

Next project : Metro Theme (yes another one again...)

Uhh... Hmm. How to go at this one.

It appears fairly, er, bland. Yes, bland, try making it more "distinguishable". It seems sort of boring, and colorless.

That was the aim, to make it usable in any situation...

Marv? The name is mavamaarten ;)

Sorry to say but I think it looks bad. Not horrible but bad. There's barely any contrast in it and its just rectangles.

Just keep on practicing, it'll work out one day!

this is like staring into a fog :(i dont really like it.

but good job anyway man, i cant even make themes worth shit lol so just keep rolling out some nice themes and i will likely find one even i like :)

Jordy - June 20, 2012, 4:47 am

Good job for the first time, But i don't really like it.

xXx pR0 h4X0r xXx - June 20, 2012, 4:52 am

Yeah, I guess the gray isnt that great, I am going to give a try at a Metro theme, and yes I know alot are in progress by other users and all...

Mahyem - June 20, 2012, 6:45 am

Boring!

It's good for a start but yeah watch the tut #3 you will make lots of good things and your theme will be more good.

Bonne chance pour la suite gars hoocrax - June 20, 2012, 7:29 am

Nice try , but seriously, barely anyone would use it, or rather even try it out or look at the code :(

For what it's worth, the first couple of themes I had made were HORRIBLE. You'll catch on quickly if you keep up with it. =]
