Is <http://www.thehut.com> Legit?

And shipping is around 1.5 dollars to Canada which is really good, but the problem is when you type your address in there are 2 lines, and I'm not sure what to put in because in Canada we don't use 2 lines and I'm pretty sure you don't in the United States ether, can someone help me out.

Merxi - June 23, 2012, 7:27 pm

When they ask for two lines you ignore the second one.
It seems like a registered LTD.

I thought that too but you can't continue with the checkout without at least 2 lines filled and they provide you with 4 lines...

The site is PR5 dude, definitely legit.

Leonard Hofstadter - June 24, 2012, 2:37 am

Defo legit, I have ordered off there numerous times.

BlaineusTV - June 24, 2012, 2:42 am

I've orderd from there to the UK, It's really good. But not the cheapest prices.

Deer With No Eye - June 24, 2012, 2:46 am

Yeah, I'd like to order from there to but I dont know about the two shipping address lines.. you must fill both of them in or else you cannot place your order.

2 lines is incase you're in an apartment, or P.O Box in Canada..

If its asking 2 lines just do

Alright in Canada, this is how an example of a full address would be:
Ontario (Province), Toronto (City), N2L 4Q4 (Postal Code),
514-G Morningdale Place (Address)

And on the checkout page all it says is address and postal code can someone help me with how I would arrange it within the 2 lines.

Irreplaceable - June 24, 2012, 4:34 pm

Haven't ever had any problems with them.
Seems legit to me.

I live in Canada....
It goes

123 Fake Street N4H1H2
Toronto, Ontario, Canada. You don't need the City, or province because the Postal code includes that information.

Thank you Ill try it out

Deer With No Eye - June 26, 2012, 4:00 am

Just ordered some stuff from there, I hope I actually get it.

Lol the post above me fixed my problem up also, so now I'm probably buying some thing, 1 dollar shipping, and really cheap not bad looking clothes, me like.

If you don't mind me asking, what did you buy?

odd. - June 26, 2012, 3:23 pm

IE:

Address

City

State

Try that. It might work.
