Thread: 3D street art on paper

dxanthony - July 10, 2012, 9:39 am

Hello guys, I recently draw these pictures by hand [Pencil] and thought I would share them with you. These illusions are usually seen in street art but I used the same basic to put them on paper :D They are not perfect but I hope you like them, btw I am not an artist or anything like that I am just a 17 years old who like to draw.

If you have any idea or picture that you want to turn into a 3D illusion I will be happy to do it :D

And this one probably sucks (I am not good at adding shadows with colors) but here is the lion roar requested by "Sarsaparilla"

Willrule123 - July 10, 2012, 10:31 am

This looks great! You should add some color to some of them to make them look better, other than that, nice!

dxanthony - July 10, 2012, 10:40 am

Thanks I happy you liked them, ans yes I should add some colors to better bring the drawing to life ...

Greek - July 10, 2012, 10:51 am

That's amazing ! you should make tutorials on how to do it.

Grace - July 10, 2012, 10:53 am

Damn, dude. That looks good as hell. Especially the first one. I've always wanted to learn how to do that kind of shit.

And for the tutorial I don't think I can really put a good one, after all it is art and I don't think you can teach someone to draw but you can teach him how to improve.

Anyway here is a photo to explain how these illusions works :

[img]<http://i1086.photobucket.com/albums/j450/anthony-yaghi/Untitled-2.png>[img]

Now lets say your standing at ' P ' and looking at the point ' A ', if you project the point A from that angle of view on the paper you will get ' B '.

This way if you remove the object and you look at ' B ' you will see as if it was at ' A '.

Hope I help you understand :D

Nice work dude. Try putting them on the street and see if you get any reactions.

These are simply amazing. <3

Could you also make one of a lion? Like, in mid-roar and the main focus is on the mouth.

Selist - July 10, 2012, 6:20 pm
