Hmmm, My guess would be C4D, created the spheres then placed the image in for the Sky Object/Environment. Played around with lighting to get a nice reflection off the spheres after creating the material with a slight reflection and then render the spheres out by alpha channel, placed in to photoshop to do the shadow under the spheres, brightening the lights and smudging a bit as you see here:

That's what I can see. Really like it. loving the different concept. different from the grundgy signatures everywhere :)

EDIT: (Probably completely wrong but that's how I would do it with no tutorial or anything)

I like it but the balls look kinda random. They don't blend too well or looks very real if you will Actually, all work was done in Photoshop only :) Also the balls and the (poor) reflection.

Yeah I wanted to make the balls blend in better but then I was unsure what to do with them..
Thanks for the comment :)

Wasn't too bad actually, I was just goofing around trying to find ways to make nice balls like that in Photoshop and then I wanted to try adding some reflection on them.

You didn't do fuck all. So good job, you put your name and some balls on it.

Except from adding extra light to parts of the picture, creating and adding the balls, adding reflection to the balls and adding some slight smudging as well as the shades then no. I did nothing. Thanks for your comment.

Also, if you read the OP it says I need suggestions for more things to do to the entire picture, hinting that maybe I don't feel the picture is done.

Posts from GM seems to be more and more helpful these days.

Well, from the cocky ones yeah.

I don't know what to suggest, the whole idea is kind of wack.

Yeah I guess, that's probably why I am having a struggle myself coming up with more.

I love the background (the city) but the balls looks ugly , I think it is because they aren't shiny

Sorry mate but I'm going to give you 7/10 just because of the balls

Keep up good work :D
