Got Dre beats today.

I know for a fact they're 100% real because in the UK there's a shop called comet its bit like a techs store and they wouldn't sell fake merchandise.

Here are some pictures.

Sorry for the big pictures.

Why this is in bragging rights I made all of the money for the headphones just from doing a partnership with a hackforums user, I would ask for you not to post if you see this thread not mentioning his name.

Also please discuss what you think of the headphones here they are solo HD's with control talk if you didn't look at the picture.

Got mine at Christmas time, the solo hd's in red are a special edition. The black and white ones were £160 then.

Lady Deathstroke - July 22, 2012, 3:43 am

Sorry I allways get them confused with studios.

Suspicion - July 22, 2012, 4:05 am

I shop at Comet to, Look good, post your bill D:

Lady Deathstroke - July 22, 2012, 4:32 am

Whatcha mean post my bill? I paid £134.50

Beats suck, they are way too overpriced and their sound quality is just okay. There are much better headphones that you could get for the same price if not cheaper.

Meep - July 22, 2012, 11:28 am sound of got them from HMV £135, damn man

Imperialz! - July 22, 2012, 11:39 am

Sweet! I had them, sold them for the silver studios though :D.. And regardless they may be pricey, but they are definitely good... Overpriced for the brand.. who cares.. people can buy a white tee for 3 USD, but then you get those who buy 1000 USD white tees .. You got the money, you want the product then no regrets!

BrothaMike - July 22, 2012, 12:18 pm

I'm jelly.. My studio's broke, dropped them on the ground :/.

Thats why most of the big Djs use them.

Congratulations!Thanks, yeah I've heard really good things about those headphones aswell, abit too far out of my price range unfortunetly

My studio's broke, dropped them on the ground :/.Depending on where you bought them from, you should have a 1 year warranty with them so if you dropped them make up a story and claim it as manufacturer damage like say they snapped or something and get a new pair.

Coding4Noobs - July 22, 2012, 2:16 pm

I had White Solo's HD last year november, but they broke in like a week, so i ended up buying black Studios in stead, they havent broke yet :) the studios are a lot louder and more HD but they are to bulky for my liking.

Lady Deathstroke - July 22, 2012, 2:27 pm

To be honest if I had the money I would have bought studios but I simply cannot afford them. So I bought Solo HD's

Oh PS I only realised after buying them because they're the red pair they're a limited edition which i thought was pretty awesome.

SeaJay - July 22, 2012, 2:34 pm

igot a pair of soloshd in usa theother day :D there sick

Lady Deathstroke - July 22, 2012, 2:47 pm

Only complaint I have about them is they get fairly hot not sure if you've noticed that yet.

i noticed that too about the SoloHD when i had them.

just becareful where you store them they snap so easily.

GL1TCH3D - July 23, 2012, 10:43 am

Beats are some of the worst headphones I've ever tried.

I'll be getting a pair of HD800 soon >.<

Can't wait

Most of the dj's? They're probably using them to advertise them.

Can you name any dj besides david guetta who's wearing them?

Lady Deathstroke - July 24, 2012, 6:43 am

Alot of non well known dj's ive seen have been using studios actually.

Also I get what you guys are saying for commercial use there are better headphones but still.

If they're using beats they obviously aren't professional, they're just there to have a "cool" image.

Lady Deathstroke - July 24, 2012, 2:18 pm

To be honest I'll say what I said earlier there are better headphones out there but the truth is alot of them are well overpriced and not all dj's will pay that much for a pair of headphones.

Beats ARE the most overpriced headphones on the market...

The solos have the quality of $5 headphones, the studios are worth maybe $50 and the pros around $100.

You can get something like the HD25 for djing, much better build and sound quality.

SeaJay - July 24, 2012, 2:25 pm

holy crap guys stop with the beats are shit etcc headphones or headphones no big deal

Phurion - July 24, 2012, 2:41 pm

I own a pair of Solo HD's in black and they're amazing<33 too bad I forgot them back in Canada :(

Lady Deathstroke - July 24, 2012, 3:00 pm

To end this constant arguing Im locking this thread put it this way for every day use beats are perfect for me. Im not a dj so.
